PRESIDENT OF STARK COUNTY COMMISSION ACCUSED OF BRIBERY

Admits Arranging To Accept Cash For Contract

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24.—Charles A. Fromm of Canton, president of the Stark County board of county commissioners and chairman of the building commission, today admitted arranging to accept 10 per cent of the contract price on the recently completed Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium near Canton—but denied soliciting a bribe.

Fromm was arrested at his home in Canton this morning on the charge of soliciting a bribe and was brought to Cleveland by County Secret Service Officer John E. Toner and Detective Sgt. Patrick Ryan, assigned to the office of County Prosecutor Ray T. Miller.

He was arrested on an indictment voted by the Cuyahoga County grand jury and is to be arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Harrison W. Ewing.

Fromm is charged in the indictment with soliciting a bribe from J. E. Keefe, manager, and George N. Kirk, salesman, respectively for the Colson-Cleveland Co., which furnished food conveying equipment for the new million-dollar tuberculosis sanitarium.

The indictment alleges that Fromm demanded 10 per cent of the contract price of $3,900 for equipment furnished by the Colson-Cleveland company and that when the demand was refused he declined to authorize payment of a balance of $2033 still due the concern.

It is alleged that Fromm made repeated trips to the Cleveland office of the company to demand money, and alleged repeated trips to the home of Kirk in Akron. He further is alleged to have agreed finally, according to Keefe, to accept $200 as a compromise "because at his salary of $216 a month he certainly had to have more than to live on because of many hardships imposed upon him by the huge task of building this institution."

The new sanitarium is situated near Alliance and is considered one of the model institutions of its kind in the country. It began receiving its first patients July 30 and now is operating at capacity. It is directed by H. O. Black, formerly of Cleveland.

Negotiations were opened by the Cleveland branch of the company to furnish the equipment after Kirk had presented to the Stark county commissioners specifications on the material he had to sell.

Estimates were prepared and bids submitted and during the progress of the negotiations, according to Keefe, remarks were made intimating it "would be necessary to give some of the officials money."

After Fromm allegedly requested immediate payment, according to Keefe, Kirk was instructed by Keefe to state flatly that there was to be nothing paid to anyone "not even to the extent of a 5-cent cigar."

Fromm first visited the company's office on August 5, according to Keefe, and demanded payment, declaring the company's bill, still remaining unpaid in the amount of $2,000, was being held up for that reason.

Kirk was absent on vacation and the matter was dropped until August 21, according to Keefe. He then called Fromm and informed him that after going over all the details of the matter with Kirk he was convinced that Kirk never offered Fromm anything in consideration for the contract.

The next day, August 22, Keefe declared, Fromm came to his office where they consulted Kirk and at which time Kirk again emphatically denied ever having made any promise to give Fromm money.

LATER PLANTING IS PRACTICAL METHOD OF FIGHTING BORER

Fifteen Days Will Save Crop From Infection

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—Later planting is the most practical method of combating ravages of the European corn borer, E. C. Cotton, chief of the division of plant industry said today after a visit to the infested area in northwestern Ohio.

Cotton, accompanied by Agriculture Director Perry L. Green and Assistant Director C. E. Rowland, motored from Findlay through sections of Putnam, Paulding, Defiance, Henry, Ottawa, and Lucas counties.

"The answer to the problem is right before the farmer's eyes," Cotton said. "An interval of fifteen days in planting often means the difference between a normal and an infected crop."

The state agriculture chiefs visited the federal experiment station at Bono, where surveys of borer treatments are being made.

Following investigation of conditions in Ohio, Michigan, and Ontario, corn borer specialists will meet in Toledo September 25-27, Cotton said. They represent the American Association of Economic Entomologists, American Society of Agricultural Engineers, American Society of Agronomists, American Farm Economic Association and the American Society of Animal Production.

JEWISH VILLAGE ATTACKED BY ARABS

JERUSALEM, Sept. 24.—A Jewish children's village in Jezreel valley, supported by American philanthropic organizations, was attacked by Arabs Monday. Shalom Elieha, a village guard, was shot to death.

The telephone lines were severed. Police sent from Afulah saved the village and routed the attackers.

Jezreel is an ancient town of Palestine on the plain of Jezreel (Esdrael), fifty-three miles north of Jerusalem.

FIND BODY IN WELL

MECHANICSBURG, O., Sept. 24.—Two men were questioned today in connection with the death of Homer Lucas, 30, negro, whose body was found in a well near his home. Those questioned were Lucas' father, Joshua, 60, and his brother, Chester, 33. The sheriff says Lucas was murdered.

CAL GAVE CHECK
PLAINVILLE, Conn., Sept. 24.—Calvin Coolidge's wedding present to John and Florence was a check, Mrs. John H. Trumbull, mother of the bride told the United Press today.

John Coolidge And Bride Motor North To Honeymoon In Maine Woods Lodge

PLAINVILLE, Conn., Sept. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge motored northward today to a honeymoon lodge in the Maine woods.

Florence Trumbull Coolidge's red sports roadster left Plainville last night on a two-week jaunt, most of which will be spent at the summer home of Governor John H. Trumbull. Two miles from a telephone, the young couple will surround their honeymoon with secrecy.

The itinerary of their trip to Maine was guarded carefully at the reception that followed the wedding yesterday. It was presumed Erwin G. Stevens, caretaker of the Trumbull Lodge, would meet them, probably in Boston, and escort the couple the rest of the way.

Stevens flew down for the wedding.

What started out to be "just a quiet little home wedding" developed into a state celebration yesterday when the bells in steeples rang at 3 p. m. EST. More than 2,000 persons, most of them uninvited, surged against the line of state policemen, attempting to get a glimpse of the bridal party at the First Congregational Church and at the Trumbull mansion.

They saw the bride in a Patou gown of ivory satin, relieved by a long string of pearls, with black-lined panels. The veil was caught up under a cap of duchess lace.

Young Coolidge was in afternoon dress, his hair plastered and a lily at his buttonhole. Calvin Coolidge who came down with Mrs. Coolidge just before the wedding and left soon after the reception, also was in afternoon dress. The former president made the concession of wearing a gardenia for the bride, although Mr. Coolidge warned Florence he would get rid of it at the earliest opportunity.

Coolidge "did not choose" to reveal what his wedding gift was and from those who gained admittance to the reception it was learned the former president had discovered a microphone hidden beneath the rug, with which a talking motion picture camera had hoped to record the event. The microphone was removed.

Events moved smoothly in the church. Florence smiled as she entered on her father's arm and threw frequent glances at her mother, who was seated in one of the front pews. John also glanced at his parents, who were seated beside the Trumbulls, but apparently was too nervous to muster a smile.

The single ring service was used; the wedding ring with its thirteen diamonds slipped on the bride's finger without balking; John and Florence delivered their vows in firm, even tones.

At the reception the bride and bridegroom stood in the receiving line with their parents. Florence kissed friends frequently; John shook hands and smiled in public for the first time in three days; Calvin Coolidge employed the jerky, muscle-saving hand shake he perfected in the White House.

Young Coolidge must be back in New Haven in two weeks to resume his job in the New Haven railroad offices. Meanwhile he will eat food cooked by his wife on an oil stove at the Moosehead Lake Lodge.

SAM HILDRETH, DEAN OF RACE HORSE TRAINERS, IS CALLED

Veteran Horseman Succumbs In New York Hospital After Operation; Trained Rancocas Stables For Harry Sinclair.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Sam Hildreth, dean of American thoroughbred trainers, died today at the Fifth Ave. Hospital, where he had been in critical condition after an abdominal operation.

Hildreth was conscious until he died. His wife and daughter and Dr. Benjamin Tilton were at the bedside. The end came at 7:50 a. m.

Hildreth was 68 years old. He had been director of the Rancocas racing stable and breeding farm of Harry F. Sinclair and continued his training activities until last August.

Hildreth was born in Independence, Mo., in 1866 and for many years pursued the nomadic career of a small race man, gambler, jockey and trader.

His father, Vincent, had been a tobacco planter whose chief interest was horses. The father finally gave up tobacco entirely to spend his time with the horses. Little Sam went along. He rode a number of mounts. He often told of the great winners he rode.

He prospered and failed. His betting was sizeable. It is told of Hildreth that he was broke, married and got hit by a street car. The car company paid him $500 and he bet it all on a horse race—and won. From there he climbed on to the millionaire class.

"Lucky" Baldwin urged Hildreth from his nomadic career about the small tracks and got him as a trainer, a regular job. Since then Hildreth's interest has been as a trainer and his wealth has been created through that for he has trained for the finest stables.

Harry Sinclair was reputed to pay Hildreth the greatest salary paid a trainer.

Hildreth was training for E. E. Smathers. Sinclair was introduced to Hildreth as a baseball man and Hildreth marked the oil man's racing card. Some of the horses won. The friendship formed that day continued until Sinclair induced Hildreth to leave the field of independent owners and aid him in re-establishing the Rancocas stables which Pierre Lorillard had started.

Zev was Hildreth's greatest horse, although he trained many great horses including Hourless, Mad Play, Stromboli, Silver Fox, and Grey Lag. Zev won the coveted international race when with Earle Sande up he romped to victory over Papyrus, the great English horse at Belmont Park, Steven Donaghue up.

Twelve men who were arrested on suspicion of having taken part in Sunday's riot were released, but John P. Dempsey, assistant general manager of the company said that assault and battery warrants would probably be sworn out.

RESUME EFFORTS TO RENEW RELATIONS

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Valentin Doygalevsky, Soviet ambassador to France, and Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, resumed their conversations today looking toward the renewal of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

The conversation today was reported to have been wholly with regard to methods of procedure under the future conferences.

When Ambassador Doygalevsky conferred with Henderson several weeks ago their negotiations came to an abrupt end with the Soviet emissary's demands that the two countries exchange ambassadors before working out the final details of an agreement. Henderson refused.

PYTHIANS DISCUSS ENDOWMENT FUND

LOGAN, O., Sept. 24.—Plans for an endowment campaign for the organization's home at Springfield were discussed today at an executive session of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias.

Marietta and Springfield are bidding for the 1930 convention. Today's business also included installation of the new grand chancellor, Judge Charles L. Justice of Marion who succeeds James Dunn, Jr., of Cleveland.

FARM BUREAU WILL DEBATE TAX PLAN

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, said today the Farm Bureau will accept the challenge of John H. Chester of Paulding County, to debate the proposed tax limitation amendment which Chester is opposing.

Palmer said he had written to Chester, suggesting the debate be held in Defiance on Thursday, Oct. 3.

"We are accepting Chester's invitation in order to emphasize our stand," Palmer said, "but we wish clearly understood that the Farm Bureau declines to be drawn into a series of debates."

"Our campaign in behalf of the amendment is based solely on the merits of the measure and upon the tax needs of our state."

YOUTH IS CARRIED ALOFT BY EAGLE

SOMERSET, Ky., Sept. 24.—George Meece, 8, of Ruth, near here, was picked up by a bald eagle and carried aloft ten feet before the bird dropped him. It was revealed here today.

The boy, weighing about 65 pounds, was playing with four companions on a hillside when the eagle swooped down and fastened its talons in George's overalls. The shouts of George's friends caused the eagle to drop him, they said.

The boy was rendered unconscious in the fall, but rallied after about thirty minutes. He said the eagle had a wingspread of about ten feet.

MILLER HUGGINS IS STILL IN CRITICAL CONDITION IS SAID

Little Manager Has Dangerous Battle Against Death

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Miller Huggins, plucky little manager of the New York Yankees, lived through the night despite grave fears for his life, but his condition was still critical today.

Early today it was said at St. Vincent's Hospital that Huggins had spent a "fairly good night" and was "not any worse."

The pilot of the old world champions was battling against influenza and crivels. Huggins' chances were believed to be slim. A physician's bulletin last night described the little manager's condition as "critical," following two blood transfusions.

The Yankees left last night for Boston on their last road swing of the season. Most of the players sent flowers, or telegrams to the manager they were leaving behind.

Huggins was delirious most of yesterday. He called for his brother and sister, already in a nearby room, but they were not permitted to see him.

Huggins is forty-nine years old and his battle for life depended on whether he could find the resistance to throw off a suddenly developing infection.

Since coming to the Yankees ten years ago Huggins has won six pennants.

SLAYER HANGS SELF IN JAIL

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 24.—Using his pajamas as a rope, Eugene Burgess, alleged "evil eye" slayer, hanged himself in his cell in the Kalamazoo County Jail today.

Burgess and his wife, Pearl, were to go on trial next Monday as the slayers of Mrs. Etta L. Fairchild, aged minister's widow. Mrs. Fairchild was clubbed to death while a dinner guest at the Burgess' home, July 18.

The Burgessses believed the elderly woman had "hexed" their daughter, Eugene, 17, and had killed others through her strange mental process.

GIRL DRIVER KILLED

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 24.—Miss Olive Keeney, 18, of Leatherwood, Ky., was killed near here when her automobile left the road and plunged down a steep embankment.

TRUCE CALLED IN SOCIAL WAR

Mrs. Gann And Mrs. Longworth Will Be Absent From Capital During MacDonald's Visit.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Washington's social war is off and the armistice is on. Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the speaker of the house, have discovered pressing engagements at their respective homes during the several days Premier MacDonald will be in the city.

SENATE COMMITTEE WILL URGE PROBE OF WASHINGTON LOBBIES

Will Recommend Inquiry By Separate Senate Committee; Confine Present Probe To Shearer Activities

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Recommendations for a senatorial inquiry into the subject of expensive lobbies maintained in Washington by various parties interested in legislation and government politics may be included in the report of the senate committee investigating the Shearer naval case.

Swamped with telegrams and letters from many quarters demanding inquiry into everything from the tariff lobbyists to the St. Lawrence waterways development, Chairman Shortridge of the Shearer committee indicated today he would suggest a separate investigation by a different committee of the senate to follow up the leads he has received.

Everyone at the capital appears to realize expensive lobbies are maintained on nearly every subject of legislation, but no facts about them have been developed since the famous sugar lobby investigation of a quarter of a century ago. Their activities are unrestricted by any statute and are within the law, although repeated attempts have been unsuccessfully made to investigate or restrict them.

The most recent endeavor along these lines is the Caraway bill, now pending in the senate, to require all lobbyists to register with the clerk of the house, their names, who they represent and how much they are paid.

Shortridge is emphatic that the present inquiry must be confined to the activities at the Geneva disarmament conference of William B. Shearer, naval propagandist who has been described in testimony as a "lobbyist extraordinary."

The committee intends to hear today Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Corporation who has said his concern paid $18,000 to Shearer without his knowledge or consent. Other witnesses will include Frederick P. Palen, vice president of the same corporation who made the payments to Shearer, Lawrence R. Wilder, president of the Transoceanic Steamship Service, and Henry Hunter, counsel of the American Shipbuilders Association, who, acting for three American shipbuilders, paid Shearer more than $25,000 to go to Geneva.

Despite efforts to hold the investigation to Shearer's activities at Geneva, testimony has shown that American shipbuilders spent about $143,000 to further the Jones-White merchant marine bill and that Shearer was employed in some instances to "report the views of congress and the president on merchant marine matters." An inquiry into this phase of the subject would require months.

THOMPSON TO HEAD CONSERVATION BODY

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—J. W. Thompson, chief of state fish and game division, has been selected for appointment as commissioner of the state's new conservation commission. The commission will absorb all the duties of the bill and game division. Thompson's appointment was recommended by the conservation council and confirmation is almost foregone. Former Lieut. Governor Charles H. Lewis of Harpersburg, was recommended for appointment as chairman of the commission.

PROFESSOR WEDS

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 24.—Dr. Charles Sumner Howe, former president of the Case School of Applied Science, has been married to Mrs. Ida E. Puffer of North Amherst, Mass., it was announced today. The marriage was a complete surprise to Dr. Howe's friends.

ROBERT HANSEL, 19, ROBBED, KIDNAPED BY THREE BANDITS

Youth Forced From Auto Near Xenia; $35 Stolen

Three youthful, unmasked bandits held up Robert Hansel, 19, attendant at the Cities Service Oil Co., filling station, Main and Galloway Sts., at 1 a. m. Tuesday, rifled the cash register of the day's receipts amounting to $35, then forced him to enter their auto and drove him to a point two miles south of Xenia on the New Burlington Pike, where they released him, the youth reported to police.

Hansel could furnish police with only a meager description of the bandit trio. He described them as being young and fairly well dressed.

Hansel said the trio drove up to the station in a green Oakland touring car having disc wheels. They purchased twelve gallons of gasoline and two quarts of oil.

During the course of a conversation while Hansel was filling the gas tank, the strangers said they were from Dayton and asked the direction to Chillicothe.

One of the occupants tendered a $5 bill in payment. Leaving the driver at the wheel, the two other men followed the attendant into the station. While Hansel had his back turned to the men after opening the register to make the change, one man pushed a revolver against his back while his companion, who also displayed a weapon, scooped up all the money in sight in the cash drawer.

Hansel was then compelled to enter their auto, he said, and was driven two miles out on the Burlington Pike, south of Xenia. His captors forced the youth out of the car and made him climb over a fence into an adjacent field.

Hansel reported the car was turned around and the trio drove back in the direction of Xenia. The youth walked all the way back to the city and reported the hold-up at Police Headquarters. He said he did not get a glimpse of the license plates on the machine.

CLERK OF PREBLE COUNTY IS FINED

DAYTON, O., Sept. 24.—Ray Lake, of Eaton, clerk of the Preble County Common Pleas Court, was fined $250 and costs here yesterday by Probate Judge William C. Wiseman on a charge of possessing liquor.

A charge of transportation was withdrawn when it was learned the officer who preferred the charge did not witness the act on which the charge was based.

Lake was arrested two weeks ago after his auto was involved in an accident here. Two jugs of liquor were said to have been found in his car.

THIRTY DIE IN MOSCOW WRECK

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—Thirty persons were killed and forty others were injured when a railway train from Moscow jumped the rails and was wrecked at the station of Zauyevka, near Sverdlovsk, today. The cause of the derailment was not known.

PRESIDENT OF STARK COUNTY COMMISSION ACCUSED OF BRIBERY

Admits Arranging To

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24.—Charles A. Fromm of Canton, president of the Stark County board of county commissioners and chairman of the building commission, today admitted arranging to accept 10 per cent of the contract price on the recently completed Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium near Canton—but denied soliciting a bribe.

Fromm was arrested at his home in Canton this morning on the charge of soliciting a bribe and was brought to Cleveland by County Secret Service Officer John E. Toner and Detective Sgt. Patrick Ryan, assigned to the office of County Prosecutor Ray T. Miller.

He was arrested on an indictment voted by the Cuyahoga County grand jury and is to be arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Harrison W. Ewing.

Fromm is charged in the indictment with soliciting a bribe from J. E. Keefe, manager, and George N. Kirk, salesman, respectively for the Colson-Cleveland Co., which furnished food conveying equipment for the new million-dollar tuberculosis sanitarium.

The indictment alleges that Fromm demanded 10 per cent of the contract price of $3,900 for equipment furnished by the Colson-Cleveland company and that when the demand was refused he declined to authorize payment of a balance of $2033 still due the concern.

It is alleged that Fromm made repeated trips to the Cleveland office of the company to demand money, and alleged repeated trips to the home of Kirk in Akron. He further is alleged to have agreed finally, according to Keefe, to accept $200 as a compromise "because of his salary of $216 a month he certainly had to have more than to live on because of many hardships imposed upon him by the huge task of building this institution."

The next day, August 22, Keefe declared, Fromm came to his office where they consulted Kirk and at which time Kirk again emphatically denied ever having made any promise to give Fromm money.

At that time Fromm is quoted by Keefe as declaring he felt he had $400 due him, that he would fight the matter to the bitter end and that neither Keefe nor Kirk "could make any runny out of him."

Fromm declared, according to Keefe, that he had been elected by the greatest majority ever accorded a commissioner in Stark County; that he was "sitting pretty" and was prepared to hold up the company's bill indefinitely and that the company could "go to hell." That he would fight it out to the end and to the point of going to the penitentiary before receding from his position.

Details leading up to the granting of the contract to the company, confirmed by Kirk, include a trip of inspection by Dr. Black to Toledo where the company's goods are manufactured, for which Kirk insists Fromm demanded the company pay expenses.

"Lucky" Baldwin urged Hildreth from his nomadic career about the small tracks and got him as a trainer, a regular job. Since then Hildreth's interest has been as a trainer and his wealth has been created through that for he has trained for the finest stables.

Harry Sinclair was reputed to pay Hildreth the greatest salary paid a trainer.

Hildreth was training for E. E. Smathers. Sinclair was introduced to Hildreth as a baseball man and Hildreth marked the oil man's racing card. Some of the horses won.

The friendship formed that continued until Sinclair induced Hildreth to leave the field of independent owners and aid him in re-establishing the Rancocas stables which Pierre Lorillard had started.

Zev was Hildreth's greatest horse, although he trained many great horses including Hourless, Mad Play, Stromboli, Silver Fox, and Grey Lag. Zev won the coveted international race when with Earle Sande up he romped to victory over Payrus, the great English horse at Belmont Park, Steven Donaghue up.

Twelve men who were arrested on suspicion of having taken part in Sunday's riot were released, but John P. Dempsey, assistant general manager of the company said that assault and battery warrants would probably be sworn out.

Elmer Rubner, Erie, Pa., received a broken jaw, and John Maust, also of Erie, was severely bruised.

The attack was the second in two days, a gang of twenty strikers having fought a pitched battle with nine drivers Sunday in downtown Cleveland.

MILLER HUGGINS IS STILL IN CRITICAL CONDITION IS SAID

Little Manager Has Dangerous Battle Against Death

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Miller Huggins, plucky little manager of the New York Yankees, lived through the night despite grave fears for his life, but his condition was still critical today.

Early today it was said at St. Vincent's Hospital that Huggins had spent a "fairly good night" and was "not any worse."

The pilot of the old world champions was battling against influenza and erysipelas. Huggins' chances were believed to be slim. A physician's bulletin last night described the little manager's condition as "critical," following two blood transfusions.

The Yankees left last night for Boston on their last road swing of the season. Most of the players sent flowers or telegrams to the manager they were leaving behind.

Huggins was delirious most of yesterday. He called for his brother and sister, already in a nearby room, but they were not permitted to see him.

Huggins is forty-nine years old and his battle for life depended on whether he could find the rest needed to throw off a suddenly developing infection.

Since coming to the Yankees ten years ago Huggins has won six pennants.

SLAYER HANGS SELF IN JAIL

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 24.—Using his pajamas as a "evil eye" slayer, hanged himself in his cell in the Kalamazoo County Jail today.

Burgess and his wife, Pearl, were to go on trial next Monday as the slayers of Mrs. Etta L. Fairchild, aged minister's widow. Mrs. Fairchild was clubbed to death while a dinner guest at the Burgess' home, July 16.

The Burgess believed the elderly woman had "hexed" their daughter, Eugenie, 17, and had killed others through her strange mental process.

GIRL DRIVER KILLED

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 24.—Miss Olive Keeney, 18, of Leatherwood, Ky., was killed near here when her automobile left the road and plunged down a steep embankment.

TRUCE CALLED IN SOCIAL WAR

Mrs. Gann And Mrs. Longworth Will Be Absent From Capital During MacDonald's Visit.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Washington's social war is off and the armistice is on. Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the speaker of the house, have discovered pressing engagements at their respective homes during the several days Premier MacDonald will be a guest here.

Capital hostesses have been plagued by the responsibility of determining which of these official women should be seated at table above the other if both attended the same function. MacDonald's visit to Washington roused hope that the problem would have to be decided by the president or Secretary of State Stimson.

If both women had been in the city both would have rated invitations at least to the White House dinner for MacDonald. In his capacity as

SENATE COMMITTEE WILL URGE PROBE OF WASHINGTON LOBBIES

Will Recommend Inquiry By Separate Senate Committee; Confine Present Probe To Shearer Activities

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Recommendations for a senatorial inquiry into the subject of expensive lobbies maintained in Washington by various parties interested in legislation and government politics may be included in the report of the senate committee investigating the Shearer naval case.

Swamped with telegrams and letters from many quarters demanding inquiry into everything from the tariff lobbyists to the St. Lawrence waterways development, Chairman Shortridge of the Shearer committee indicated today he would suggest a separate investigation by a different committee of the senate to follow up the leads he has received.

Everyone at the capital appears to realize expensive lobbies are maintained on nearly every subject of legislation, but no facts about them have been developed since the famous sugar lobby investigation of a quarter of a century ago. Their activities are unrestricted by any statute and are within the law, although repeated attempts have been unsuccessfully made to investigate or restrict them.

The most recent endeavor along these lines is the Caraway bill, now pending in the senate, to require all lobbyists to register with the clerk of the house, their names, who they represent and how much they are paid.

Shortridge is emphatic that the present inquiry must be confined to the activities at the Geneva disarmament conference of William B. Shearer, naval propagandist who has been described in testimony as a "lobbyist extraordinary."

The committee intends to hear today Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Corporation who has said his concern paid $18,000 to Shearer without his knowledge or consent. Other witnesses will include Frederick P. Palen, vice president of the same corporation who made the payments to Shearer, Lawrence R. Wilder, president of the Transoceanic Steamship Service and Henry Hunter, counsel of the American Shipbuilders Association who, acting for three American shipbuilders, paid Shearer more than $25,000 to go to Geneva.

Despite efforts to hold the investigation to Shearer's activities at Geneva, testimony has shown that American shipbuilders spent about $143,000 to further the Jones and White merchant marine bill and that Shearer was employed in some instances to "report the views of congress and the president on merchant marine matters." An inquiry into this phase of the subject would require months.

THOMPSON TO HEAD CONSERVATION BODY

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—J. W. Thompson, chief of state fish and game division, has been selected for appointment as commissioner of the state's new conservation commission. The commission will absorb all the duties of the fish and game division. Thompson's appointment was recommended by the conservation council and confirmation is almost foregone. Former Lieut. Governor Charles H. Lewis of Harpersburg was recommended for appointment as chairman of the commission.

ROBERT HANSEL, 19, ROBBED, KIDNAPED BY THREE BANDITS

Youth Forced From Auto Near Xenia; $35 Stolen

Three youthful, unmasked bandits held up Robert Hansel, 19, attendant at the Cities Service Oil Co., filling station, Main and Galloway Sts., at 1 a. m. Tuesday, rifled the cash register of the day's receipts amounting to $35, then forced him to enter their auto and drove him to a point two miles south of Xenia on the New Burlington Pike, where they released him, the youth reported to police.

Hansel could furnish police with only a meager description of the bandit trio. He described them as being young and fairly well dressed.

Hansel said the trio drove up to the station in a green Oakland touring car having disc wheels. They purchased twelve gallons of gasoline and two quarts of oil.

During the course of a conversation while Hansel was filling the gas tank, the strangers said they were from Dayton and asked the direction to Chillicothe.

One of the occupants tendered a $5 bill in payment. Leaving the driver at the wheel, the two other men followed the attendant into the station. While Hansel had his back turned to the men after opening the register to make the change, one man pushed a revolver against his back while his companion, who also displayed a weapon, scooped up all the money in sight in the cash drawer.

Hansel was then compelled to enter their auto, he said, and was driven two miles out on the Erlingman Pike near Xenia. His captors forced the youth out of the car and made him climb over a fence into an adjacent field.

Hansel reported the car was turned around and the trio drove back in the direction of Xenia. The youth walked all the way back to the city and reported the hold-up at Police Headquarters. He said he did not get a glimpse of the license plates on the machine.

CLERK OF PREBLE COUNTY IS FINED

DAYTON, O., Sept. 24.—Ray Lake, of Eaton, clerk of the Preble County Common Pleas Court, was fined $250 and costs here yesterday by Probate Judge William C. Wiseman on a charge of possessing liquor.

A charge of transportation was withdrawn when it was learned the officer who preferred the charge did not witness the act on which the charge was based.

Lake was arrested two weeks ago after his auto was involved in an accident here. Two jugs of liquor were said to have been found in his car.

FIRST WOMAN AVIATOR IS NOW QUIETLY PRACTICING MEDICINE

HER FIRST FLIGHT WAS MADE IN 1910—THE PLANE WAS CAPABLE OF A SPEED OF 35 MILES PER HOUR AND ROSE TO THE GREAT HEIGHT OF 30 FEET

By NEIL STANLEY
SANTA ANA, Cal., Sept. 24.—Nineteen years ago Mrs. Bessica Raiche was hailed as America's first woman flyer. Today this intrepid aviatrix is living a quiet life here as a practicing physician where her chief interests are her home, her daughter and her profession.

It was at Mineola, Long Island, in 1910, that Mrs. Raiche made her first flights into the air.

The exploits of the Wright brothers, Glenn H. Curtiss and Mme. Daniz Moore, a French woman, interested Dr. Raiche and her husband so much that they decided to build a plane of their own.

It was a bi-plane, the third one ever built, and it was constructed in the Raiches' summer home, at Mineola. The front room of their residence was stripped of everything during its construction. When it was completed, the large windows along the front of the house were removed and the plane taken out for its first flight.

The plane was capable of a speed of thirty-five miles an hour, being equipped with a 40-horsepower marine engine, at that time widely in use for aircraft.

Dr. Raiche's first flight in her own ship was made in September of 1910. Within a month's time she had made several circuits of the Mineola flying field and had flown as high as thirty feet from the ground.

The feats of the Long Island woman attracted widespread attention and she was immediately proposed for membership in the Aeronautical society. She was presented with a handsome medal, the presentation being made by Hudson Maxim, the inventor, who was president of the society. It was inscribed "To the First Woman Aviator of America, Bessica Raiche, Presented by Her Admirers, Friends of the Aeronautical Society."

"Aviators in the early days were considered crazy, to say the least," Dr. Raiche recalls. "Huge crowds swarmed to the flying meets and everyone expected the flyers to be killed. There were all sorts of freak planes then, for aviation was new and no one knew exactly what type of plane would prove the best. Most of the queer looking planes never got off ground, which probably was just as well for their flyers."

"The huge airplanes that dot the skies now were not considered practical at that time, for we believed that a plane must be as light in weight as possible. Of course, we used marine motors and they were not capable of lifting a very heavy load into the air."

Although Dr. Raiche's home is but a few miles from a busy airport, she has not been in the air since she began her medical practice, a number of years ago.

"Yes, I still love flying, but, you see, I have my home, and daughter and my work," Dr. Raiche said, with a smile, when asked about her apparent waning interest in aviation.

"Every time I hear a motor droning overhead my heart seems to beat faster, and I want to rush out side to look at the plane. But you can't do that when you have patients in your office, so I just shrug my shoulders and concentrate on my work."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

A cheer leader in the person of John C. Beacham was chosen Monday during the noon home room period. Mary Soward, senior, was chosen first assistant and Annetta Price, sophomore, second assistant.

Tryouts were held Friday afternoon during the O. S. and S. O. Home game and those who attended the game were asked to vote for whom they felt was best fitted for the position during home room period.

Beacham was the assistant last year and should be able to take care of the position in fine style. He will have under him two girls who gave fine accounts of themselves last Friday.

Others who tried out were Ralph Ennis, Margaret Seibert, Margaret Davidson, and Russell Seibert.

Even with all these leaders, it didn't sound much like a football game was going on last week. With the regular leaders chosen Xenia ought to be able to make a little noise this week.

A committee composed of class officers was in charge of the voting.

DAVEY BUYS THREE KENT NEWSPAPERS

KENT, Sept. 24.—Both of Kent's weekly newspapers, the Tribune and the Courier, and a third paper, the Hudson, O. Herald, which is owned by the Courier, have been purchased by former Congressman Martin L. Davey, president of the Davey Tree Expert Co., which has its general offices here. The consideration was not announced.

Mechanical production will be centralized in one plant, but for a time all three newspapers will be delivered separately to subscribers. Mr. Davey announced that ultimately the two Kent papers will be merged into one and published as a daily.

Mr. Davey's interests will be represented by L. L. Poe, advertising manager of the Davey company, who will also serve as publisher of the papers. Poe formerly was managing editor of the Akron Times.

The Kent Courier dates back to 1883, when it was founded by the late Will Kent, grandson of the founder of the City of Kent. It was owned by A. N. Lawson and W. G. Arthurs. The Tribune has been published since 1915 by John Paxton and J. B. Holm.

APPROVE BUYING WATER FROM XENIA

Immediate action looking toward permanent abandonment of the dual water system at the O. S. and S. O. Home and connection with the Xenia municipal supply has been recommended by the board of trustees, which has approved partial abandonment of the Home system.

Trustees accepted plans for the projected change prepared by Robert Harsh, Columbus architect and the plans will be sent at once to the state architect for approval.

The institution uses between 80,000 and 100,000 gallons of water daily and change of the water system is considered the most immediate need of the Home at present.

Four driven wells provide the home with its water supply for drinking purposes and cooking, while the hot water supply for domestic purposes and boilers is obtained from Shawnee Creek, which flows through the institution grounds. Aside from being inadequate at times, continued use of the creek water has been characterized as a menace to the health of the children. Occasions have also been noted when the well water, which is pure, has also run short in dry seasons.

THE NEW CHARM

"The Home of Thrift"

As fast as the pulling power of one scheme for obtaining the money of a trusting public is exhausted, another is devised and brought forward. This time it is called an "Investment Trust."

The operation of this scheme differs little from the "pools" and "syndicates" that have been holding forth, except that in this case the greater amount of money will come from the small investors, who will be entirely in the hands of those in immediate control, and in whose interest, of course, the organization is effected.

Like children who tire of one toy and take up any new shining thing that is placed before them, many people will want to try this new game, and sooner or later will find that in any scheme for making something out of nothing the chances for losses are always greater than the chances for gain—for all except the game-keeper.

If you are solicited, keep your Building Association deposit with its 6% and Safety.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be buried in Maysville, W. Va., burial of Mr. Smith having been delayed so that joint burial services can be held. Surviving is a daughter, Mary Elizabeth, who recently enrolled at Miami University, Oxford, O.

FAIRFIELD TO VOTE ON FIRE APPARATUS

Adequate fire protection for Fairfield village will be assured if voters approve a $7,000 bond issue, authorized by the village council, which will be voted upon at the November election.

The fund is expected to be used to construct a fireproof engine house and to acquire fire-fighting apparatus. The bond issue will run for a maximum period of ten years and in order for the project to pass it must have the approval of 55 per cent of those voting on the question. County Auditor P. H. Creswell estimated that it will require an extra levy outside the fifteen-mill limitation averaging 1.309 mills a year to retire principal and interest on the bonds.

STATE COMMISSION HAS NEW TAX RATES

Tentative 1930 tax rates as assigned by County Auditor P. H. Creswell for the fifty-four taxing districts of Greene County were delivered personally by the auditor Monday to the state tax commission at Columbus for final consideration by the state taxing body. Announcement of the complete list of definite tax rates for next year is expected to be made later in the week.

SPRING VALLEY TO VOTE ON PROPOSAL TO CONTROL FLOODS

A proposed bond issue for $21,120, authorized by the village council at Spring Valley to defray the cost of construction and improving levees, drains, ditches and water courses in order to provide flood protection for the village, will be voted upon by Spring Valley residents at the November 5 election. During particularly heavy rainstorms the lowlands in that district are inundated and it is to safeguard against possible future property damage resulting from high water that the council decided upon a bond issue.

REFUGEES FLEE AS RIO GRANDE FLOODS

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 24.—Refugees, weary and ill from fleeing before the muddy waters of the raging Rio Grande, struggled into El Paso today from the flood locked town of San Marcial, N. M., 100 miles south of Albuquerque. Communication with the stricken area has been almost totally disrupted, but meager reports reaching here told how the Rio Grande, already at a seasonal high level, was forced from its banks to spread destruction when a two-inch rain fell in the Albuquerque district. A woman was drowned and it was feared there had been other casualties. Levees, weakened and broken from the flood of a month ago, crumbled before the swirling, debris-laden waters.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia. This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases. A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y. In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875. Adv.

SPRING VALLEY TO VOTE ON PROPOSAL TO CONTROL FLOODS

A proposed bond issue for $212,120, authorized by the village council at Spring Valley to defray the cost of construction and improving levees, drains, ditches and water courses in order to provide flood protection for the village, will be voted upon by Spring Valley residents at the November 5 election. During particularly heavy rainstorms the lowlands in that district are inundated and it is to safeguard against possible future property damage resulting from high water that the council decided upon a bond issue.

REFUGEES FLEE AS RIO GRANDE FLOODS

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 24.—Refugees, weary and ill from fleeing before the muddy waters of the raging Rio Grande, struggled into El Paso today from the flood locked town of San Marcial, N. M., 100 miles south of Albuquerque. Communication with the stricken area has been almost totally disrupted, but meager reports reaching here told how the Rio Grande, already at a seasonal high level, was forced from its banks to spread destruction when a two-inch rain fell in the Albuquerque district. A woman was drowned and it was feared there had been other casualties. Levees, weakened and broken from the flood of a month ago, crumbled before the swirling, debris-laden waters.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia. This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases. A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y. In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SEVENTY TIMES SEVEN — Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times; but, Jesus seventy times seven.—Mat. 18:21, 22.

THE WRITING GAME

The census of 1930 might, but it won't disclose the fact that about two-thirds of the adult population of this home of the educated and land of optimism think they can write things that publishers will pay for, if the aforesaid publishers and editors have a modicum of good sense and good judgment. These aspiring and sweating two-thirds are either sending pieces to the editors, or are threatening to send. They are consuming and critical readers of books and magazines, consuming in the fact that they read to the point of literary indigestion, and critical in that they think they can write as well or better.

As like as not you are one of this two-thirds in your critical faculty at least. You read a news article and decide that anybody could do it. You read an editorial, and you decide that a schoolboy could do as well. You read a magazine article so easily that you think it must have been easy to write. You read a poem and are fired to join the mighty army of spring, or other seasonal poets. You read the fiction in the lowest and highest magazines, and wonder if men and women are really paid for such stuff. Why, you may have a trunkful of manuscripts of greater merit, only the editors were dumb-bells. You read the best sellers, and decide that they are such because of the press agents, and that you could or have done better.

Sooner or later you hear of the fabulous incomes of the writers, the amount varying from a cent a word to a dollar or more, and you begin to figure that even at the one cent rate you could get ten dollars for a thousand words that you could dash off in an hour. Ten dollars an hour, and 10 hours a day, and seven days a week, and so on, and on, and on. You learn that an author gets ten per cent royalty on each novel that sells for $2.50 a copy on an edition of 100,000. And don't forget the stage and movie rights. O, boy. Why be a school teacher, or a reporter, or a clerk, or a stenographer? However, don't throw up these jobs until the checks have begun to come in with some degree of regularity.

If you seek advice from a more or less successful writer, he is almost sure to throw cold water on you by pointing out the difficulties, the almost certain failure unless you have more genius or more perseverance than he thinks you have. If he takes time to examine your output, and dares to find fault with it, you will probably think him a grouchy who is full of jealousy. By all means take the article to your best friend, and hear his words of praise, spilled either because he doesn't want to hurt your feelings, or because he doesn't know any better.

You have already guessed the conclusion of all this, but it must be written anyhow.

There is money and fame and satisfaction in the writing game, if you know how to play it, but remember that it is at least as hard to gain prominence in it as it was for Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth or Bill Tilden, and you know how few of these there are among the millions of players of golf, baseball and tennis. If you have native ability, and if you are willing to work everlastingly to perfect your game of writing, you may excel.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Oscar earns his spare ribs and tea night, watching for a bank of which former Police Commissioner McLaughlin is the president. Oscar is a home-loving man. He never cares to wander from his own bedside. And the other night, sitting in his shirt sleeves in a kitchen chair outside the paying teller's window, puffing dejectedly at his cornob, his thoughts drifted back to his cozy little Ostermoor at home. The more he thought the lonelier he got.

Twelve o'clock struck. A promissory note in the bank vault fell due with a dull, sickening crash. Whereupon Oscar arose, knocked the ashes from his pipe, donned his see-more jacket, put on his hat and went home. Through clerical error he forgot to close the front door of the bank so that when Maggie, the scrub lady, arrived several hours later she found it gently swinging in the breeze of early morning.

Maggie made the sign of the cross and then called a cop. The cop called some more cops, and they finally located Oscar safe at home, snuggled deep, and snoring in his Simmons.

The noise like the Twentieth Century applying the emergency brakes was merely Gangland grinding its teeth when it learned next day that $600,000 reposed in the bank vault for several hours the night before with the front door open and the watchman home in bed.

RACKETEERS' TOLL

New York's kids Chicago about the latter's proficiency in racketeering. As a matter of fact, the Windy City has nothing on the Capital of the Commonwealth in that respect. If it were not for racketeering the cost of living in the Mart-on-the-Hudson would not be wobbling between the pathetic and the ridiculous. Every one pays, rich and poor alike. Not even the baby's milk bottle escapes. The stranger within the city gates may shrug and ask how that can possibly interest him. It interests him to this extent: That an extra dollar a day is tagged to the price of his hotel room to offset the demands the racketeers make upon him.

In recent years the "take" of the racketeers in the building trades alone, in only one of Manhattan's five boroughs, has been $30,000,000.

Laugh that off.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

MARATHONS

Some endurance tests have value. They have lessons to teach. The youthful fliers who stayed aloft many hours taught the scientific world something important about airplanes and flying. Marathon dancers teach the world a lesson also, but it is a sad lesson. We learn from them that civilization is a thin skin that is quickly punctured in many places. Down on the African coast supposedly savage natives dance all night to the music of the tom-tom. We call them barbarians. They would not dance six weeks, as American marathon dancers will in this allegedly civilized country. The African savage is too well balanced, is too civilized, knows too much.

PERFECT

John Kane, 20 months old, is an Independence, Kans., baby. In a recent baby show John won first place in his class, scoring 99.6 per cent. Babies like that furnish a great crop in Kansas or any other state. John's parents are proud, and yet not more proud than the parents of almost any baby. Fortunately nearly all parents think their babies are perfect. What is 99.6 per cent on a judge's notebook compared with the absolute 100 per cent in the heart of a mother?

THE THING THAT LASTS

Some years ago a letter signed by Oliver Goldsmith was sold for $200. The man who bought it sold it. Later he bought it back. This time he paid $6,500 for the same letter. What makes value? Something more than demand, after all. If Oliver Goldsmith had written best sellers of the type of "Elmer Gantry" or dozens of other books that register for a brief moment with the popular fancy, his signature would not be worth 65 cents, to say nothing of $6,500. Good sound work may be slow in bringing its rewards. Sometimes it is tragically slow, but if the value is there even a careless public some day will not be able to escape it.

DELAY SEEN NECESSARY IN FLOOD CONTROL WORK

By HARRY B. HAWES
Senator From Missouri

(Harry Bartow Hawes was born at Covington, Ky., Nov. 15, 1869. He is a graduate of St. Louis Law school. He began practicing at St. Louis in 1896. In 1898 he represented the Republic of Hawaii during its annexation to the United States. He was a member of the Missouri house of representatives from 1916 to 1917 and president of the board of police commissioners at St. Louis for four years. He was elected to congress in 1921 from the eleventh Missouri district. In 1927 he was elected to the senate. He was a captain in the United States army and was a military attaché at Madrid during the World War. He is a Democrat.)

The failure of the so-called Jadwin plan for flood control in the Mississippi river valley to take into consideration the full rights of property owners brings to congress the necessity of suspending the application of the program pending legislative or executive action.

If the engineers who proposed the Jadwin plan had studied the constitution of the United States as carefully as they have studied their army manuals, we would have had no trouble.

Since that time, unfortunately, some persons in St. Louis who do not live in the disrupted area, who do not own property there, who hold no official position and understand nothing about the conditions have interested their unsolicited interference for the sole purpose of further insinuating themselves in the good wishes of the chief of engineers.

These two things are the cause of our troubles.

The Mississippi river commission's plan of flood control, which was rejected by a commission appointed by General Jadwin, which commission adopted the Jadwin plan, contained an estimate of the cost of property damages. This was omitted in the Jadwin plan. Now the courts are being called upon, and they are very naturally, as might have been anticipated, asserting the constitutional rights of property owners to be compensated where the government diverts water from the main channel of the river, over private property which is at the present time protected.

I have never believed that the owners of private property would submit to the Jadwin plan, nor so far as that is concerned, would the states submit to it.

"The situation which has developed was predicted from the very first. That is why I have always contended, and still contend, that in the expenditure of such a huge sum of money—the greatest ever appropriated for a single peace-time purpose by the United States—that some of the greater civilian engineers with practical experience should have been called in.

They were not called in. I assume, because the central organization of all the engineering bodies of the nation criticized the Jadwin plan

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The American woman stands out among all her foreign sisters as having attained the greatest degree of freedom. Today it is not unusual to number among your friends women who have families and still pursue a career.

Even women not actively engaged in a profession do many things besides take care of their homes. The woman who leads such a full existence soon learns that she must systemize her life in order to have time for everything. She knows exactly what she wants, and then sets about getting it in a businesslike, intelligent manner. It is hard to understand, therefore, why such a woman will so often neglect her personal appearance on the basis that she is "too busy." Perhaps she would find time if she knew how much beauty is a part of the home and business, too.

Every woman can find time to protect and enhance her beauty if she has the will to do so. She can make this care as much a regular part of the day as meal time or bedtime. There has been so much progress made in the field of beauty culture that the modern woman need only want to be beautiful and then proceed in the most systematic way to carry out her desire.

The only women who really attain perfection in personal charm are the ones who have already learned to preserve the precious gifts of youth as long as possible. They have treatments for their skins in the morning and at night. If they want special advice they consult a beauty expert. No matter how crowded their days, no matter how many the demands on their time, these hours set aside for beauty are sacred hours. There must be women in your immediate circle who answer much this description. They are happy. They lead well-ordered lives. In any gathering they are always distinguished by their perfect grooming. You most likely remark, on seeing them: "How kind nature has been to them!"

You would hit nearer home in saying: "These women have the will to beauty. They have learned how to preserve and improve what nature has so kindly bestowed on them!"

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Dynamite is excellent stuff, to get rid of an obstruction in the way of some useful piece of work which one is anxious to accomplish.

Too much of it, however, is notoriously dangerous. Just the right quantity gives fine results; a superfluity may not only irreparably damage the job in hand, but wreck the whole countryside.

Similarly—

Supposing it to be true that the warship-building interests which William B. Shearer says he represented at Geneva in 1927 have been lobbying for all they are worth to block President Hoover's plans for international naval reduction, then the Hoover administration's ends will be admirably served by an investigation guaranteed to knock those interests and Mr. Shearer into smithereens in popular esteem.

Only one must be mighty careful to know in advance exactly where such investigation will stop. Let it go too far, and a lot of the wrong interests and individuals are liable to be knocked into smithereens also.

To have a senate committee busy exposing a plot by a gang of heartless profiteers to keep the war germ alive in the world is to have this going on right while President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald of England are engaged in their diplomatic laboratory experiment to hit on an infallible war germicide!

Nothing could be more satisfactory for Mr. Hoover, for Mr. MacDonald and for all peace-loving folk over the whole face of the globe.

It would be the ideal kind of publicity at the ideal moment.

It would not be so satisfactory if, at the same time, a barrage of accusations of nefarious activity were being hurled against American advocates of armament reduction.

Quite aside from the warship-building interests, there unquestionably exists in this country a big navy camp which militaristic or not, it is only fair to consider perfectly honest. Extremists of this group do voice the suspicion that some of our so-called little navy organizations obtain financial support from abroad, deliberately intended to weaken Uncle Sam on the sea.

Without in the least assuming that these charges are well founded, they obviously would rob the other sort of testimony of some of its punch, developed simultaneously with the latter before the senate investigating committee.

There is another peril to be guarded against. It is not precisely a peril which threatens the Shearer investigation—except, perhaps, that it would be apt to turn it into an altogether different species of inquiry; but it assuredly is a peril certain to impel a considerable number of powerful interests to strangle any inquiry at all rather than risk being dragged into it.

That is to say, various influential senators are clamoring for an investigation, not alone into lobbying by the warship-building concerns, but into ALL lobbying.

This is where the dynamite comparison comes in. When an inquiry starts, into some particular interest's individual lobbying activities, numerous other, entirely distinct interests find themselves in the fix of just that many owners of a powder house apiece in a neighborhood where blasting is going on. They have no objection to blasting "per se," but the repeated concussion alarm them—each for the safety of his own magazine.

This worrying is not without justification. Senator Charles W. Waterman of Colorado, a member of the naval affairs committee, voted in committee against the warship-building investigation resolution because peace influences were not included. He was temporarily squelched, but is sure to be heard from again later—maybe with formidable support, as soon as the big navy-ites have had time to rally 'round.

Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway of Arkansas likewise is pretty sure to howl. He was away when the warship-building inquiry was voted, but has had a resolution pending since April for a probe of lobbying generally, charging that more is spent on it than it costs to keep congress running.

True, Senators Samuel M. Shortridge of California, Henry J. Allen of Kansas and Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the subcommittee which is going after William B. Shearer and the warship-builders, were elaborately instructed to go after no one else.

They were a mighty carefully picked trio—extra-discreet and manageable—yes, including Senator Robinson, when it's dynamite he is handling.

Still, it's pesky stuff. This thing mustn't be a dud, yet a stick too much, and heaven knows who may be blown to kingdom come!

Scotch Mince—One pound round steak (ground), one large onion, one tablespoon flour, hot water, seasoning to taste. Place in frying pan with fat and brown thoroughly over a medium fire. Season to taste and add onion cut in four pieces. Cover with hot water and cover. Cook for one and a half hours over a slow flame, adding hot water whenever necessary.

When almost ready to take from the flame add a very little flour and water thickening. Serve piping hot.

Cheese Fondue—One cup scalded milk, one cup bread crumbs, one-fourth pound mild cheese cut in small pieces, one tablespoon butter, three eggs, salt to taste. Mix all ingredients with the exception of the eggs. Beat egg yolks and add. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold them in. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven.

Clove Cake—One-half cup butter, one cup brown sugar, two-thirds cup chopped raisins, two eggs, one-fourth cup milk, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon ground cloves. Cream butter and sugar; drop in eggs, add milk, then the raisins, and the rest of the flour. Bake in loaf pan for 35 minutes in a moderate oven.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

GAINS WEIGHT

"Dear Dr. Peters: (1) I have been on a diet for eight weeks and reduced considerably but last week when I got on the scale, I gained a pound, and how disgusting that is! (2) After you have reduced to your desired weight, what shall you eat that you do not gain all your weight back again? (3) Why is it that some people can eat and eat and eat, and never get fat, and the moment I eat a little too much, I gain a pound? (4) How can I reduce my hips? (5) I have your Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories, and in it you say don't take physics. Why?" "M."

(1) If you have been dieting, M., to the extent that you are really getting less food than you need, that gain of a pound is simply water, not fat. And had you weighed the next day, you would have found you lost the water, and the scales would also have shown you had lost some fat, too, for some of it has been used to make up the diet deficiency. In order to get a correct comparison of weight, it is necessary to have the same number of calories of the same type of food, the day—perhaps two days—before you weigh yourself, each time, so the water balance factor will be the same.

(2) After you have reduced to normal weight, you simply keep on eating as you have been while reducing, except in larger amounts. You want to continue light on rich desserts, candy, nuts and fats all your life. Remember that, otherwise you will gain again, unless you increase your physical activities. One of the benefits of a long, slow reduction is that by the time you get down to normal, your food tastes have changed and you don't care nearly so much for concentrated foods. And another thing, your stomach is much smaller and doesn't demand so much of everything. You wonder how you ever ate so much before.

(3) You are still overweight;

that's one of the reasons you gain. Why, you know the Bible says, "To him that hath shall be given, and that in abundance." Those who eat, and eat, and eat, and don't gain, you would find weight more immediately after eating, but they don't store it up as fat because they use it up in their activities. Remember that those who are normal or underweight need more energy food than the overweight persons of the same height. For one thing, they are usually more active physically, and every move has more pep to it, and another thing, they radiate 50 per cent more heat! Those who are overweight don't radiate it because of the fact that they are uncomfortable in fat. You know—the fireless cooker type.

(4) To reduce any particular parts of the body, you have to give them more exercise and massage. For the hips, the rolling exercise and other floor exercises are indicated. There is one exercise—lying on your side, raising the legs about two inches from the floor and swinging them alternately back and forth—that just grinds your fat right off; you'll find high kicking, walking briskly with long strides, running and rope jumping, are all good. (Always be sure you can take vigorous exercise by having a physical check-up!)

(5) Physics should be taken only when there is some necessity for rushing the intestinal contents through as rapidly as possible. Ordinary constipation should be avoided by sufficient roughage in the diet, and exercise. If necessary, the addition of non-medicated agar, or psyllium seeds, or small amounts of mineral oil. These you can get in any well stocked drug store.

Those who need instructions on how to lose or gain weight may have our pamphlet on the subject. This contains in condensed form the same instructions that I have in my book. We also have an article on Constipation and one on the Tummy Tan exercises.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The male philanderer is a cocky sort of soul. He undoubtedly has his bad moments when wife finds out about his goings on and until he is assured that she will forgive and take him back. But he's quite apt to think he's a pretty fine fellow and a regular devil with the ladies. And, when he's quite sure his wife still loves him, he won't turn him out, quite inclined to boast of his popularity and even to congratulate her on having such a fascinating husband.

Just what Friend Wife should do under the circumstances is largely up to her. Some women can forgive such a fault better than he. He could make other—a business failure, for instance, or one so lacking charm that no other woman would want him.

A young wife asks my solution of this problem in her case:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a young married woman, 31 years old. Have been married 13 years and have two lovely children. About four months ago my husband ran off with a married woman who also had two children. He came back and promised to straighten up and do what was right. This was the first time he ever made a wrong step. He said he loved me better than this woman. Since he came back he acts like he thinks the most of her. He told me once he would have to draw cuts to see which he did like best. He worships the children. Can you please give me a little advice? He has always been good to us and a wonderful provider. Can this be infatuation?" ANXIOUS WIFE.

I think it is infatuation, all right. Anxious Wife, but Friend Hubby is infatuated mostly with himself. Since he has found that another woman would fall for him he puts on airs, just like a little boy. Now he knows you have forgiven him and he is in no danger of losing his home and children he crows over you and tosses you by saying he can't choose between you and the other woman. You'll have to treat him as you would a little boy. He may have to be spanked—figuratively, of course—occasionally to keep him in line. Keep yourself right up to the minute with pretty clothes, etc., and let him know that he has an attractive wife and two fine children, and if he wants to keep them he'll have to continue to toe the mark.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm writing for advice, but I don't know just how to explain. I've been going with a boy for several months. I like him as a friend, but I don't care to go with him any more. He is very jealous of me. He has a very good friend whom I like very much. His friend says he likes me, too, but won't go with me because I am going with the other boy. He says he wouldn't treat anyone like that. Now, Mrs. Lee, I want to go with him. I took your advice once, so please help me now. SPECKS.

I don't know that I can in this case, Specks. It's a matter of honor with the boy. All you could do would be to break off definitely with the boy friend with whom you are now going, and hope that the other will feel free to go with you. He may not, however, if you throw his friend over. Loyalty to him may prevent him, no matter how much he likes you.

ANONYMOUS: The boy is simply moody and speaks when he feels like it and snubs you when he doesn't. Such people must be accepted by their friends and allowances made for them. They are sometimes nice enough when they are in a good mood to make up for their deficiencies at other times.

You have to be the "good friend" to such a one and pay no attention to his moods. No, you are not old enough to smoke.

SAVED

It was necessary for taxation purposes to decide on which side of the Canadian and United States border a farm, which an old lady had just purchased, actually lay. Surveyors finally announced that the farm was just on the American side of the border.

The old lady smiled with relief. "I'm so glad to know that," she said. "I've heard that winters in Canada are terribly severe."

GAY SIR BUTTERFLY SETTLES THE QUESTION

"Something told me not to accept Rose's offer to visit her, Peter," declared Sir Butterfly, continuing the conversation, "and now, thanks to you, I know why! It was because I had been giving my attention to the Lilies all day long. I must say if there is a place I love to rest, it is on the breast of this old sweetheart of mine. But I like the Rose, and Violet, and Tulip, and every single one of you, and there isn't one among you who can say I have neglected you this season and tell the truth. Come, now, is there? I always visit you in turn, don't I?" "Yes, yes, you do!" chorused the flowers of the garden, nodding their colorful heads.

"Well, then, don't be jealous of the wandering attention of Butterflies and Bees. We love you all and try to help you all we can. Goodness gracious! I had no idea it was so late! "No, I must say I don't," replied Peter.

"Well, there are several clocks right in front of you, and as plain as the nose on your face!" declared Butterfly.

The Flowers, one and all, tittered and swayed on their stems to see Peter so puzzled.

"Boy is a stranger in Blossomland and doesn't know how to tell time," they whispered, one to the other.

Peter stared slowly around him. But nothing he could see looked in the slightest like a clock.

"Tell me where these clocks are, do, Butterfly," he pleaded.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SEVENTH TIMES SEVEN—Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times; but, Until seventy times seven.—Mat. 18:21, 22.

THE WRITING GAME

The census of 1930 might, but it won't disclose the fact that about two-thirds of the adult population of this home of the educated and land of optimism think they can write things that publishers will pay for, if the afore-said publishers and editors have a modicum of good sense and good judgment. These aspiring and sweating two-thirds are either sending pieces to the editors, or are threatening to send. They are consuming and critical readers of books and magazines, consuming in the fact that they read to the point of literary indigestion, and critical in that they think they can write as well or better.

As like as not you are one of this two-thirds in your critical faculty at least. You read a news article and decide that anybody could do it. You read an editorial, and you decide that a schoolboy could do as well. You read a magazine article so easily that you think it must have been easy to write. You read a poem and are fired to join the mighty army of spring, or other seasonal poets. You read the fiction in the lowest and highest magazines, and wonder if men and women are really paid for such stuff. Why, you may have a trunkful of manuscripts of greater merit, only the editors were dumb-bells. You read the best sellers, and decide that they are such because of the press agents, and that you could or have done better.

Sooner or later you hear of the fabulous incomes of the writers, the amount varying from a cent a word to a dollar or more, and you begin to figure that even at the one cent rate you could get ten dollars for a thousand words that you could dash off in an hour. Ten dollars an hour, and 10 hours a day, and seven days a week, and so on, and on, and on. You learn that an author gets ten per cent royalty on each novel that sells for $2.50 a copy on an edition of 100,000. And don't forget the stage and movie rights. O, boy. Why be a school teacher, or a reporter, or a clerk, or a stenographer? However, don't throw up these jobs until the checks have begun to come in with some degree of regularity.

If you seek advice from a more or less successful writer, he is almost sure to throw cold water on you by pointing out the difficulties, the almost certain failure unless you have more genius or more perseverance than he thinks you have. If he takes time to examine your output, and dares to find fault with it, you will probably think him a grouchy who is full of jealousy. By all means take the article to your best friend, and hear his words of praise, spilled either because he doesn't want to hurt your feelings, or because he doesn't know any better.

You have already guessed the conclusion of all this, but it must be written anyhow.

There is money and fame and satisfaction in the writing game, if you know how to play it, but remember that it is at least as hard to gain prominence in it as it was for Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth or Bill Tilden, and you know how few of these there are among the millions of players of golf, baseball and tennis. If you have native ability, and if you are willing to work everlastingly to perfect your game of writing, you may excel.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Oscar earns his spare ribs and tea night-watching for a bank of which former Police Commissioner McLaughlin is the president. Oscar is a home-loving man. He never cares to wander from his own fireside. And the other night, sitting in his shirt sleeves in a kitchen chair outside the paying teller's window, puffing dejectedly at his cornob, his thoughts drifted back to his cozy little Ostermoor at home. The more he thought the lonelier he got.

Twelve o'clock struck. A promissory note in the bank vault fell due with a dull, sickening crash. Whereupon Oscar arose, knocked the ashes from his pipe, donned his see-more jacket, put on his hat and went home. Through a clerical error he forgot to close the front door of the bank so that when Maggie, the scrub lady, arrived several hours later she found it gently swinging in the breeze of early morning.

Maggie made the sign of the cross and then called a cop. The cop called some more cops, and they finally located Oscar safe at home, snuggled deep, and snoring in his Simmons.

The noise like the Twentieth Century applying the emergency brakes was merely Gangland grinding its teeth when it learned next day that $600,000 reposed in the bank vault for several hours the night before with the front door open and the watchman home in bed.

RACKETEERS' TOLL

New York kids Chicago about the latter's proficiency in racketeering. As a matter of fact, the Windy City has nothing on the Capital of the Commonplace in that respect. If it were not for racketeering the cost of living in the Mart-on-the-Hudson would not be wobbling between the pathetic and the ridiculous. Everyone pays, rich and poor alike. Not even the baby's milk bottle escapes. The stranger within the city gates may shrug and ask how that can possibly interest him. It interests him to this extent: That an extra dollar a day is tagged to the price of his hotel room to offset the demands the racketeers make upon Mine Host.

In recent years the "take" of the racketeers in the building trades alone, in only one of Manhattan's five boroughs, has been $30,000,000.

THE WAY of the WORLD

MARATHONS

Some endurance tests have value. They have lessons to teach. The youthful fliers who stayed aloft many hours taught the scientific world something important about airplanes and flying. Marathon dancers teach the world a lesson also, but it is a sad lesson. We learn from them that civilization is a thin skin that is quickly punctured in many places. Down on the African coast supposedly savage natives dance all night to the music of the tom-tom. We call them barbarians. They would not dance six weeks, as American marathon dancers will in this allegedly civilized country. The African savage is too well balanced, is too civilized, knows too much.

PERFECT

John Kane, 20 months old, is an Independence, Kans., baby. In a recent baby show John won first place in his class, scoring 99.6 per cent. Babies like that furnish a great crop in Kansas or any other state. John's parents are proud, and yet not more proud than the parents of almost any baby. Fortunately nearly all parents think their babies are perfect. What is 99.6 per cent on the judge's notebook compared with the absolute 100 per cent in the heart of a mother?

THE THING THAT LASTS

Some years ago a letter signed by Oliver Goldsmith was sold for $200. The man who bought it sold it. Later he bought it back. This time he paid $6,500 for the same letter. What makes value? Something more than demand, after all. If Oliver Goldsmith had written best sellers of the type of "Elmer Gantry" or dozens of other books that register for a brief moment with the popular fancy, his signature would not be worth 65 cents, to say nothing of $6,500. Good sound work may be slow in bringing its rewards. Sometimes it brings its rewards. Sometimes it is tragically slow, but if the value is there even a careless public some day will not be able to escape it.

DELAY SEEN NECESSARY IN FLOOD CONTROL WORK

By HARRY B. HAWES
Senator From Missouri

Harry B. Hawes was born at Covington, Ky., Nov. 15, 1869. He is a graduate of St. Louis Law school. He began practicing at St. Louis in 1896. In 1898 he represented the Republic of Hawaii during its annexation to the United States. He was a member of the Missouri house of representatives from 1916 to 1917 and president of the board of police commissioners at St. Louis for four years. He was elected to congress in 1921 from the eleventh Missouri district. In 1927 he was elected to the senate. He was a captain in the United States army and was a military attaché at Madrid during the World war. He is a Democrat.

The failure of the so-called Jadwin plan for flood control in the Mississippi river valley to take into consideration the full rights of property owners brings to congress the necessity of suspending the application of the program pending legislative or executive action.

If the engineers who proposed the Jadwin plan had studied the constitution of the United States as carefully as they have studied their army manuals, we would have had no trouble.

Since that time, unfortunately, some persons in St. Louis who do not live in the disrupted area, who do not own property there, who hold no official position and understand nothing about the conditions, have interested their unsolicited interference for the sole purpose of further insulating themselves in the good wishes of the chief of engineers.

These two things are the cause of our troubles. The Mississippi river commission's plan of flood control, which was rejected by a commission appointed by General Jadwin, which commission adopted the Jadwin plan, contained an estimate of the cost of property damages. This was omitted in the Jadwin plan. Now the courts are being called upon, and they are very naturally, as might have been anticipated, asserting the constitutional rights of property owners to be compensated where the government diverts water from the main channel of the river, over private property which is at the present time protected.

I have never believed that the owners of private property would submit to the Jadwin plan, nor so far as that is concerned, would the states submit to it.

The situation which has developed was predicted from the very first. That is why I have always contended, and still contend, that in the expenditure of such a huge sum of money—the greatest ever appropriated for a single peace-time purpose by the United States—that some of the greater civilian engineers with practical experience should have been called in.

They were not called in, I assume, because the central organization of all the engineering bodies of the nation criticizes the Jadwin plan.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The American woman stands out among all her foreign sisters as having attained the greatest degree of freedom. Today it is not unusual to number among your friends women who have families and still pursue a career. Even women not actively engaged in a profession do many things besides take care of their homes. The woman who leads such a full existence soon learns that she must systemize her life in order to have time for everything. She knows exactly what she wants, and then sets about getting it in a businesslike, intelligent manner.

It is hard to understand, therefore, why such a woman will so often neglect her personal appearance on the basis that she is "too busy." Perhaps she would find time if she knew how much beauty is a part of the home and business, too.

Every woman can find time to protect and enhance her beauty if she has the will to do so. She can make this care as much a regular part of the day as meal time or bedtime. There has been so much progress made in the field of beauty culture that the modern woman need only want to be beautiful and then proceed in the most systematic way to carry out her desire.

The only women who really attain perfection in personal charm are the ones who have already learned to preserve the precious gifts of youth as long as possible. They have treatments for their skins in the morning and at night. If they want special advice they consult a beauty expert. No matter how crowded their days, no matter how many the demands on their time, these hours set aside for beauty are sacred hours. There must be women in your immediate circle who answer much this description. They are happy. They lead well-ordered lives. In any gathering they are always distinguished by their perfect grooming. You most likely remark on seeing them: "How kind nature has been to them!"

You would hit nearer home in saying: "These women have the will to beauty. They have learned how to preserve and improve what nature has so kindly bestowed on them!"

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Dynamite is excellent stuff, to get rid of an obstruction in the way of some useful piece of work which one is anxious to accomplish.

Too much of it, however, is notoriously dangerous. Just the right quantity gives fine results; a superfluity may not only irreparably damage the job in hand, but wreck the whole countryside.

Similarly—Supposing it to be true that the warship-building interests which at Geneva in 1927 have been lobbying for all they are worth to block President Hoover's plans for international naval reduction, then the Hoover administration's ends will be admirably served by an investigation guaranteed to knock those interests and Mr. Shearer into smithereens in popular esteem.

Only one must be mighty careful to know in advance exactly where such investigation will stop. Let it go too far, and a lot of the wrong interests and individuals are liable to be knocked into smithereens also.

To have a senate committee busy exposing a plot by a gang of heartless profiteers to keep the war germ alive in the world!—To have this going on right while President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald of England are engaged in their diplomatic laboratory experiment to hit on an infallible war germicide!—Nothing could be more satisfactory for Mr. Hoover, for Mr. MacDonald and for all peace-loving folk over the whole face of the globe.

It would be the ideal kind of publicity at the ideal moment.

It would not be so satisfactory if, at the same time, a barrage of accusations of nefarious activity were being hurled against American advocates of armament reduction.

Quite aside from the warship-building interests, there unquestionably exists in this country a big pay group which, militaristic or not, it is only fair to consider ing since April for a probe of lobbying generally, charging that more is spent on it than it costs to keep congress running.

True, Senators Samuel M. Shortridge of California, Henry J. Allen of Kansas and Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the subcommittee which is going after William B. Shearer and the warship-builders, were elaborately instructed to go after no one else.

They were a mighty carefully picked trio—extra-discreet and manageable—yes, including Senator Robinson, when it's dynamite he is handling.

Still, it's pesky stuff. This thing mustn't be a dud; yet a stick too much, and heaven knows who may be blown to kingdom come!

SAUCE FOR SPAGHETTI
Put a can of tomatoes into a saucepan with a chopped onion, a bud of garlic, a cup of chopped celery, a tablespoon of chopped parsley, half a bay leaf, three slices of bacon. Steam gently for half an hour, then strain. Add a tablespoon of tomato paste, a half cup of finely minced boiled liver and thicken slightly with a teaspoon each of butter and flour that have been cooked two minutes without browning. Serve hot with the drained hot spaghetti in a hot dish.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

GAINS WEIGHT

"Dear Dr. Peters: (1) I have been on a diet for eight weeks and reduced considerably but last week when I got on the scale, I gained a pound, and how disgusting it is! (2) After you have reduced to your desired weight, what shall you eat that you do not gain all your weight back again? (3) Why is it that some people can eat and eat and eat, and never get fat, and the moment I eat a little too much, I gain a pound? (4) How can I reduce my hips? (5) I have your Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories, and in it you say don't take physics. Why?"

"M."

(1) If you have been dieting, M., to the extent that you really getting less food than you need, that gain of a pound is simply water, not fat. And had you weighed the next day, you would have found you lost the water, and the scales would also have shown you had lost some fat, too, for some of it has been used to make up the diet deficiency. In order to get a correct comparison of weight, it is necessary to have the same number of calories of the same type of food, the day—perhaps two days—before you weigh yourself, each time, so the water balance factor will be the same.

(2) After you have reduced to normal weight, you simply keep on eating as you have been while reducing, except in larger amounts. You want to continue light on rich desserts, candy, nuts and fats all your life! Remember that, otherwise you will gain again, unless you increase your physical activities. One of the benefits of a long, slow reduction is that by the time you get down to normal, your food tastes have changed and you don't care nearly so much for concentrated foods. And another thing, your stomach is much smaller and doesn't demand so much of everything. You wonder how you ever ate so much before.

(3) You are still overweight; True, Senators Samuel M. Shortridge of California, Henry J. Allen of Kansas and Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the subcommittee which is going after William B. Shearer and the warship-builders, were elaborately instructed to go after no one else.

They were a mighty carefully picked trio—extra-discreet and manageable—yes, including Senator Robinson, when it's dynamite he is handling.

Just when Friend Wife should do under the circumstances is largely up to her. Some women can forgive such a fault better than they could some other—a business failure, for instance, or one so lacking charm that no other woman would want him.

Just when Friend Wife should do under the circumstances is largely up to her. Some women can forgive such a fault better than they could some other—a business failure, for instance, or one so lacking charm that no other woman would want him.

A young wife asks my solution of this problem in her case. "DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a young married woman, 31 years old. Have been married 13 years and have two lovely children. About four months ago my husband ran off with a married woman who also had two children. He came back and promised to straighten up and do what was right. This was the first time he ever made a wrong step. He said he loved me better than this woman. Since he came back he acts like he thinks the most of her. He told me once he would have to draw cuts to see which he did like best. He worships the children. Can you please give me a little advice? He has always been odd to us and a wonderful provider. Can this be infatuation? ANXIOUS WIFE."

I think it is infatuation, all right. Anxious Wife, but Friend Hubby is infatuated mostly with himself. Since he has found that another woman would fall for him he puts on airs, just like a little boy. Now he knows you have forgiven him and he is in no danger of losing his home and children he crows over you and teases you by saying he can't choose between you and the other woman. You'll have to treat him as you would a little boy. He may have to be spanked—figuratively, of course—occasionally to keep him in line. Keep yourself right up to the minute with pretty clothes, etc., and let him know that he has an attractive wife and two fine chil. en, and if he wants to keep them he'll have to continue to toe the mark.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm writing for advice, but I don't know just how to explain. I've been going with a boy for several months. I like him as a friend, but I don't care to go with him any more. He is very jealous of me. He has a very good friend whom I like very much. His friend says he likes me, but he won't go with me because I am going with the other boy. He says he wouldn't treat anyone like that. Now, Mrs. Lee, I want to go with him. I took your advice once before and it worked just fine, so please help me again. SPECKS."

I don't know that I can in this case, Specks. It's a matter of honor with the boy. All you could do would be to live off of definitely with the boy friend with whom you are now going, and hope that the other will feel free to go with you. He may not, however, if you throw his friend over. Loyalty to him may prevent him, no matter how much he likes you.

ANONYMOUS: The boy is simply moody and speaks when he feels like it and snubs you when he doesn't. Such people must be accepted by their friends and allowances made for them. They are sometimes nice enough when they are in a good mood to make up for their deficiencies at other times. You have to be the "good friend" to such a one and pay no attention to his moods. No, you are not old enough to smoke.

It was necessary for taxation purposes to decide on which side of the Canadian and United States border a farm, which an old lady had just purchased, actually lay. Surveyors finally announced that the farm was just on the American side of the border.

The old lady smiled with relief. "I'm so glad to know that," she said. "I've heard that winters in Canada are terribly severe."

"Something told me not to accept Rose's offer to visit her, Petunia!" declared Sir Butterfly, continuing the conversation, "and now, thanks to you, I know why! It was because I had been giving my attention to the Lilies all day long. I must say if there is a place I love to rest, it is on the breast of this old sweetheart of mine. But I like the Rose, and Violet, and Tulip, and every single one of you, and there isn't one among you who can say I have neglected you this season and tell the truth. Come, now, is there? I always visit you in turn, don't I?"

"Yes, yes, you do!" chorused the flowers of the garden, nodding their colorful heads.

"Well, then, don't be jealous of the wandering attention of Butterflies and Bees. We love you all and try to help you all we can. Goodness gracious, I had no idea it was so late! It will be a trifle too early to estimate the relative strength of the six teams which compose the Miami Valley League. Opening football games are nearly three weeks away — Saturday, October 12 to be exact — and until that time no definite evidence on this subject will be available.

Four of the six league teams will swing into action October 12 with Xenia Central playing at Piqua and Troy engaging Greenville on the latter's gridiron.

Based on the pre-season strength of the eleven, however, the general opinion is that Piqua, Troy and either Greenville or Sidney will constitute the first division of the league.

With seven stalwart veterans back, Piqua looks like the logical winner of the league title which it shared last season with Sidney. Piqua has less rebuilding to do than any other team with the possible exception of Troy.

Following is the complete 1929 league football schedule:

October 12—Xenia at Piqua; Troy at Greenville.

October 19—Piqua at Sidney; Troy at Miami.

October 26—Sidney at Troy; Xenia at Miami; Piqua at Greenville.

November 1—Greenville at Xenia.

November 2—Miami at Sidney.

November 9—Miami at Piqua; Xenia at Troy.

November 22—Sidney at Xenia; Miami at Greenville.

November 28—Greenville at Sidney; Piqua at Troy.

Miller Huggins, midwest manager of the New York Yankees, is reported dying of a broken heart but it may be that wounded vanity caused by the shattering of his ambition to pilot the Yankees to their fourth straight pennant this year—a feat no other major league manager ever accomplished—more correctly interprets the underlying cause of his present condition.

Erysipelas is assigned as the reason he is in St. Vincent's hospital battling for his life but New York fans think a broken heart brought about his illness.

Huggins admitted recently after the Yankees had received another trouncing from the Athletics, that "I guess I wasn't built to be a loser." This remark gave rise to the diagnosis by fans of the cause of his sickness but this explanation may have missed the mark.

Baseball players and managers in this age of commercialism do not take the game seriously, and he has been associated with the game long enough to know that the path of a manager is not always strewn with roses.

He should have learned by this time to take the bitter with the sweet.

To save the club directors' possible embarrassment, Jack Hendricks has formally tendered his resignation as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, effective at the close of the present season, October 6.

It was a mere formality, nothing more or less than a gesture, however, as he as well as the fans have known for several weeks that his services would no longer be required by the management after the current season.

Hendricks accepted the situation gracefully.

The question of his successor is the topic of the day in baseball circles but no decision will be made by the directors until the conclusion of the world series.

The latest report has it that Donie Bush, who recently resigned as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, may be considered for the vacancy.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, pennant winners in the National League, is 41 years of age. He was born in Germantown, Pa., and broke into baseball in a small league in Delaware as an infielder. Shifted around until 1911 when he was sent to Indianapolis, where Jimmy Burke, present Cubs' coach, fired him. Player-manager at Wilkes-Barre in 1912, jumped to Brooklyn Federal League club but was sent to Louisville, where he remained for ten years. Made manager in 1919. It is his fourth year with the Cubs.

OFFICERS ELECTED AND GRID SCHEDULE MAPPED AT MEETING

Mote Is President Of League; Three Games
At Home

Raymond Mote, Piqua, was elected president of the Miami Valley League of High School Athletics at the regular fall meeting of league officials at Miami High School Monday night. R. Wilson, Piqua, is the retiring president.

Other officers elected for the coming year are: Dean Snyder, Sidney, vice-president, and R. C. Zook, Troy, secretary-treasurer.

The 1930 football schedule for the six schools which compose the league was also mapped out at the league session. Xenia Central High, according to next year's chart, will play five league games, including three at home and two away. The home games are with Piqua, Troy and Miami.

The business session was preceded by a three-course dinner.

The next meeting of league representatives will be held December 3 at the new Dayton Y. M. C. A. when basketball matters will be discussed.

Principal F. R. Woodruff, O. B. Bogart, faculty manager of athletics, Coach Walter Wilson and Assistant Coach Glen Patterson attended the meeting as representatives of Xenia Central High School.

The complete 1930 league football schedule follows:

October 11—Piqua at Xenia.
October 24—Miami at Xenia.
October 31—Xenia at Greenville.

November 7—Troy at Xenia.

CHICAGO PITCHERS
READY FOR SERIES
M'CARTHY CLAIMS

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, has rebuked the fans who believe his pitchers are not in shape for the coming world series against the Philadelphia Athletics.

"A lot of the fans think we will lack pitchers in the series," said McCarthy in answer to assertions that recent mediocre pitching might extend into the big series. "Well, then, how about Connie Mack's hurlers? Seems to me Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg don't give very great promise right at this time while Earnshaw goes in and out."

"Then why all this fuss over my pitchers? We'll be ready to meet the A's Oct. 5 with a full staff."

Meanwhile, despite the undertone of doubt, Chicago newspapers were filled with optimistic predictions. It was reported that Perce "Pat" Malone and Charlie Root would be the first two Cub pitchers used, and that the order in which they will work depends upon their showing in two games against the Cincinnati Reds this weekend.

CAESARCREEK WILL BUILD ADDITION TO
SCHOOL BUILDING

Voters of Caesarcreek Twp. Rural School District will be called upon to approve at the November 5 election a bond issue for $55,000 authorized by the district board of education to finance construction of a two-story addition to the present township high school building.

The structure will be fireproof and is designed to increase the capacity range of the schoolhouse. It will also mean the elimination of three or four of the antiquated, "Little Red Schoolhouses" and eventually the abandonment of all one-room schools in the district.

The present school enrollment is forty-five pupils. The bond issue, if approved, will be gradually paid off over a period of twenty-four years.

It will be a trifle too early to estimate the relative strength of the six teams which compose the Miami Valley League. Opening football games are nearly three weeks away—Saturday, October 12 to be exact—and until that time no definite evidence on this subject will be available.

Four of the six league teams will swing into action October 12 with Xenia Central playing at Piqua and Troy engaging Greenville on the latter's gridiron.

Based on the pre-season strength of the eleven, however, the general opinion is that Piqua, Troy and either Greenville or Sidney will constitute the first division of the league.

With seven stalwart veterans back, Piqua looks like the logical winner of the league title which it shared last season with Sidney.

Piqua has less rebuilding to do than any other team with the possible exception of Troy.

Following is the complete 1929 league football schedule:

October 12—Xenia at Piqua;

Troy at Greenville.

October 19—Piqua at Sidney;

Troy at Miamisburg.

October 26—Sidney at Troy;

Xenia at Miamisburg; Piqua at Greenville.

November 1—Greenville at Xenia.

November 2—Miamisburg at Sidney.

November 9—Miamisburg at Piqua; Xenia at Troy.

November 22—Sidney at Xenia; Miamisburg at Greenville.

November 28—Greenville at Sidney; Piqua at Troy.

Miller Huggins, midget manager of the New York Yankees, is reported dying of a broken heart but it may be that wounded vanity caused by the shattering of his ambition to pilot the Yankees to their fourth straight pennant this year—a feat no other major league manager ever accomplished—more correctly interprets the underlying cause of his present condition.

Erysipelas is assigned as the reason he is in St. Vincent's hospital battling for his life but New York fans think a broken heart brought about his illness.

Huggins admitted recently after the Yankees had received another trouncing from the Athletics, that "I guess I wasn't built to be a loser." This remark gave rise to the diagnosis by fans of the cause of his sickness but this explanation may have missed the mark.

Baseball players and managers in this age of commercialism do not take the game seriously. Huggins' job is not endangered and he has been associated with the game long enough to know that the path of a manager is not always strewn with roses.

He should have learned by this time to take the bitter with the sweet.

To save the club directors' possible embarrassment, Jack Hendricks has formally tendered his resignation as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, effective at the close of the present season, October 6.

It was a mere formality, nothing more or less than a gesture, however, as he as well as the fans have known for several weeks that his services would no longer be required by the management after the current season.

Hendricks accepted the situation gracefully.

The question of his successor is the topic of the day in baseball circles but no decision will be made by the directors until the conclusion of the world series.

The latest report has it that Donie Bush, who recently resigned as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, may be considered for the vacancy.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, pennant winners in the National League, is 41 years of age. He was born in Germantown, Pa., and broke into baseball in a small league in Delaware as an infielder. Shifted around until 1911 when he was sent to Indianapolis, where Jimmy Burke, present Cubs' coach, fired him. Player-manager at Wilkes-Barre in 1913, jumped to Brooklyn Federal League club but was sent to Louisville, where he remained for ten years. Made manager in 1919. It is his fourth year with the Cubs.

CHICAGO PITCHERS
READY FOR SERIES
M'CARTHY CLAIMS

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, has rebuked the fans who believe his pitchers are not in shape for the coming world series against the Philadelphia Athletics.

"A lot of the fans think we will lack pitchers in the series," said McCarthy in answer to assertions that recent mediocre pitching might extend into the big series.

"Well, then, how about Connie Mack's hurlers? Seems to me Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg don't give very great promise right at this time while Earnshaw goes in and out.

"Then why all this fuss over my pitchers? We'll be ready to meet the A's Oct. 8 with a full staff."

Meanwhile, despite the under-tones of doubt, Chicago newspapers were filled with optimistic predictions. It was reported that Perce "Pat" Malone and Charlie Root would be the first two Cub pitchers used, and that the order in which they will work depends upon their showing in two games against the Cincinnati Reds this week-end.

CAESARCREEK WILL BUILD ADDITION TO
SCHOOL BUILDING

Voters of Caesarcreek Twp. Rural School District will be called upon to approve at the November 5 election a bond issue for $55,000 authorized by the district board of education to finance construction of a two-story addition to the present township high school building.

The structure will be fireproof and is designed to increase the capacity range of the schoolhouse. It will also mean the elimination of three or four of the antiquated "Little Red Schoolhouses" and eventually the abandonment of all one-room schools in the district.

The present school enrollment is forty-five pupils. The bond issue, if approved, will be gradually paid off over a period of twenty-four years.

SPORTS CLOTHES STILL RETAIN MANNISH SWAGGER

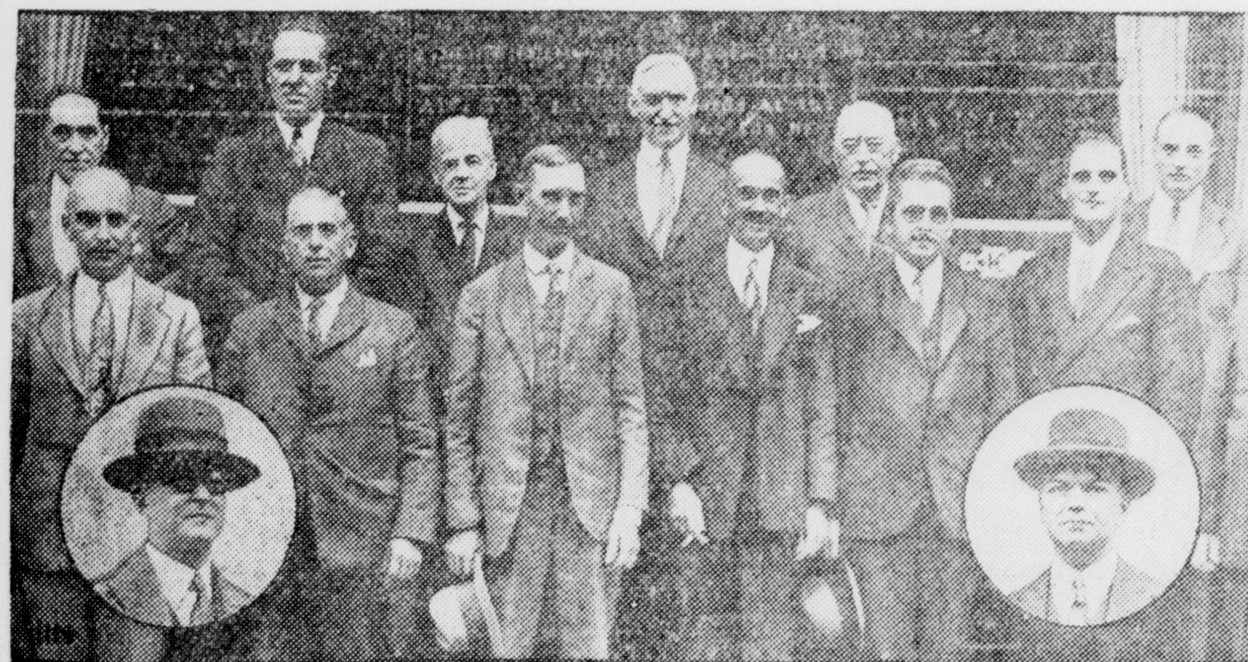

Femininity has overtaken clothes for women for everyday activities, but a bit of masculine swagger is still left milady in her super-activities like flying, skiing and skating. Advance fashions for these sports are shown here. Left, Miss Peggy Fish wears a skating outfit with beret and jacket of brilliantly colored rayon and wool fabric, with breeches and trimmings of red leather. Center, Elinor Smith, aviatrix, in a chic flying suit made under her own supervision, also rayon and woolen mixture with leather helmet. Right, Raquel Torres, of the fil-lums, chooses a skiing costume of the same mixture in a light beige with a diagonal design in a blue pattern.

Inset shows Mrs. Mary Waggoner, wife of the defendant, who was also called before the Grand Jury.

CRITICS RAP SHAW'S NEW PLAY

Is a man at 73—even the most brilliant dramatist of the age—too old to write a new play? At least, so say English critics, reviewing George Bernard Shaw's political satire, "The Apple Cart," in which a king saves the people from a tyrannical democracy. It is soon to be seen in New York. Shaw is shown, upper left, in his revolving study on his summer estate; a new portrait, lower left; and spryly taking his daily walk, right.

TO INVESTIGATE TIJUANA SHOOTING

Federal investigation and action as a result of a Tijuana shooting is to be asked in Los Angeles by Mrs. Benjamin Quibell, an American woman, and her husband. According to dispatches from Tijuana, border resort town, the Quibells and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cotter were standing around an automobile accident in the main street of Tijuana when a Mexican policeman became imbued with the idea that they had something to do with the crash and knocked Cotter down and put a bullet through Mrs. Quibell's forearm. She was held in the Tijuana jail without medical attention for many hours and Cotter, held longer, was finally released with an apology from the chief of police. Photo shows Mrs. Quibell and her children who were hurried to safety when the shooting began.

THEATER MANAGER CONTRACTS FOR SOUND PICTURE APPARATUS

Plans for the installation of the new, improved sound apparatus of the day enabling Xenians to hear and see the latest talking hits of the audible screen were announced Monday by James L. Hibbert, owner of the Bijou Theater, 19 Green St.

On the theory that enjoyment of any sound picture depends on three things—the picture itself, the quality of its sound recording and the natural tone of sound reproduction in the theater where the patron sits—Mr. Hibbert has contracted to equip his theater with the Western Electric sound system, declared to be the foremost of talking screen devices.

This is the organization which three years ago developed the first practical sound apparatus. The sound equipment has been leased for a period of ten years at a cost of approximately $7,000 and the service charge extending over this period will bring the total investment to nearly $15,000, he disclosed.

In order to make the installation, it will be necessary to erect a new and larger projecting booth, which will be located outside the theater directly in the rear of the theater booth, which will be dismantled. Contract for building the new booth was awarded to McCurran Bros., local contracting firm, and construction work will start immediately.

To aid in the reception of the sound programs, Mr. Hibbert also announced the present seats in the theater will be replaced by entirely new ones having 300 bottoms and backs. It is planned to install 473 of the more comfortable seats, increasing the seating capacity by about forty.

Work of wiring the motion picture house for the sound apparatus will start October 6 and it is hoped to introduce the "talkies" to Xenia within five weeks. It is probable the theater will remain closed for several days.

If present plans are carried out, the sound pictures will be shown every day of the week. Mr. Hibbert has already arranged for all talking comedies and other short films and is opening negotiations for obtaining the newest all-talking feature pictures available.

Because of the great expense involved and because talking pictures are more costly than the silent ones, the regular admission will be increased to 35 cents, considered a reasonable price, while the admission will be slightly greater for the more elaborate talking productions.

CLIFTON PASTOR IS NAMED MODERATOR

The Rev. Ralph M. Fox, pastor of the Clifton Presbyterian Church, was elected moderator of the Dayton Presbytery for the next six months at the meeting at the New Jersey Church at Old Carlisle, near Franklin, Monday.

The Rev. Mr. Fox succeeds the Rev. Ivan Wilkins, Springfield, retiring moderator, who preached at the services. The new moderator appointed J. M. Switzer, Dayton, as vice moderator. The Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and R. B. Watt of the local congregation, represented the Xenia church at the meeting.

The proposed endowment of a million and a half dollars for Wooster University, was discussed at the meeting.

E. S. KELLY SUFFERS CUTS IN ACCIDENT

E. S. Kelly, of Whitehall, Pa., Yellow Springs, suffered minor cuts about the hands, wrist and face when his auto was struck by another on the Yellow Springs Pike near Springfield, at 11 a. m. Monday.

The other car was driven by a boy and the collision is said to have occurred when the youth swerved his machine in an attempt to avert colliding with a light truck, police learned.

Kelly was showered with broken glass and several stitches were required to close a wound in one wrist. Philip Pay, a nephew of Kelly, who drove past the accident scene shortly afterward, took his uncle to his home in Yellow Springs.

WOMAN FRACTURES HIP IN FALL HERE

Mrs. Walker Horner, 216 S. King St., slipped and fell Monday afternoon while walking along S. Detroit St., and suffered a fractured hip. It is believed that a sudden dizzy spell caused her to fall. She was removed to McClellan Hospital for treatment. Mrs. Horner will be 74 years of age Wednesday and a birthday dinner was planned for the occasion. Her condition is as good as could be expected.

KONJOLA ENDED STOMACH MISERY AFTER 15 YEARS

Happy and Healthy Lady Describes Amazing Relief Master Medicine Gave Her; Kidney Trouble Banished, Too.

"I had been suffering for fifteen years from stomach and kidney disorders," said Mrs. John Layman, Luckey, Ohio. "After each meal quantities of gas formed that caused wild heart palpitation. Constipation added greatly to my suffering. The rundown condition of my health was becoming more pronounced each day. "However, I had been reading so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. Today I am well and happy. I eat better, sleep better and feel better. My stomach has been restored to a natural condition. All gas bloating and belching spells are ended. At the same time this medicine regulated my bowels. Konjola has exceptional merits and I recommend it to all sufferers." Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio, at Gallaher's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all the towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

THEATER MANAGER CONTRACTS FOR SOUND PICTURE APPARATUS

Plans for the installation of the new, improved sound apparatus of the day enabling Xenians to hear and see the latest talking hits of the audible screen were announced Monday by James L. Hibbert, owner of the Bijou Theater, 19 Green St.

On the theory that enjoyment of any sound picture depends on three things—the picture itself, the quality of its sound recording and the natural tone of sound reproduction in the theater where the patron sits—Mr. Hibbert has contracted to equip his theater with the Western Electric sound system, declared to be the foremost of talking screen devices.

This is the organization which three years ago developed the first practical sound apparatus. The sound equipment has been leased for a period of ten years at a cost of approximately $7,000 and the service charge extending over this period will bring the total investment to nearly $15,000, he disclosed.

In order to make the installation, it will be necessary to erect a new and larger projecting booth, which will be located outside the theater directly in the rear of the present booth, which will be dismantled. Contract for building the new booth was awarded to McCurran Bros., local contracting firm, and construction work will start immediately.

To aid in the reception of the sound programs, Mr. Hibbert also announced the present seats in the theater will be replaced by entirely new ones having soft bottoms and backs. It is planned to install 473 of the more comfortable seats, increasing the seating capacity by about forty.

Work of wiring the motion picture house for the sound apparatus will start October 6 and it is hoped to introduce the "talkies" to Xenia within five weeks. It is probable the theater will remain closed for several days.

If present plans are carried out, the sound pictures will be shown every day of the week. Mr. Hibbert has already arranged for all-talking comedies and other short films and is opening negotiations for obtaining the newest all-talking feature pictures available.

Because of the great expense involved and because talking pictures are more costly than the silent ones, the regular admission will be increased to 35 cents, considered a reasonable price, while the admission will be slightly greater for the more elaborate talking productions.

CLIFTON PASTOR IS NAMED MODERATOR

The Rev. Ralph M. Fox, pastor of the Clifton Presbyterian Church, was elected moderator of the Dayton Presbytery for the next six months at the meeting at the New Jersey Church at Old Carlisle, near Franklin, Monday.

The Rev. Mr. Fox succeeds the Rev. Ivan Wilkins, Springfield, retiring moderator, who preached at the services. The new moderator appointed J. M. Switzer, Dayton, as vice moderator. The Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and R. B. Watt of the local congregation, represented the Xenia church at the meeting.

The proposed endowment of a million and a half dollars for Wooster University, was discussed at the meeting.

XENIA PASTOR WILL BE HEARD ON RADIO

The Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, will conduct the morning religious services over Station WLW, Cincinnati, the week of October 21 to 25, it is announced.

The Rev. Mr. Tilford will be allotted twenty minutes each of the five mornings to conduct radio services including a Scripture reading, prayer and a short talk and Mrs. Tilford has been invited to sing during the services.

The Xenia minister will be in Cincinnati during that week, preaching each evening at the Blue Ash Presbyterian Church, in connection with the Ohio Synod Presbyterian Fellowship Week, during which 300 to 400 ministers in Ohio will exchange pulpits.

E. S. KELLY SUFFERS CUTS IN ACCIDENT

E. S. Kelly, of Whitehall, Pa., Yellow Springs, suffered minor cuts about the hands, wrist and face when his auto was struck by another on the Yellow Springs Pike, near Springfield, at 11 a. m. Monday.

The other car was driven by a boy and the collision is said to have occurred when the youth swerved his machine in an attempt to avoid colliding with a light truck, police learned.

Kelly was showered with broken glass and several stitches were required to close a wound in one wrist. Philip Fay, a nephew of Kelly, who drove past the accident scene shortly afterward, took his uncle to his home in Yellow Springs.

WOMAN FRACTURES HIP IN FALL HERE

Mrs. Walker Horner, 216 S. King St., slipped and fell Monday afternoon while walking along S. Detroit St., and suffered a fractured hip. It is believed that a sudden dizzy spell caused her to fall. She was removed to McClellan Hospital for treatment. Mrs. Horner will be 74 years of age Wednesday and a birthday dinner was planned for the occasion. Her condition is as good as could be expected.

Happy and Healthy Lady Describes Amazing Relief Master Medicine Gave Her: Kidney Trouble Banished, Too.

"I had been suffering for fifteen years from stomach and kidney disorders," said Mrs. John Layman, Luckey, Ohio. "After each meal quantities of gas formed that caused wild heart palpitation. Con-

MRS. JOHN LAYMAN stipulation added greatly to my suffering. The rundown condition of my health was becoming more pronounced each day. "I had been reading so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. Today I am well and happy. I eat better, sleep better and feel better. My stomach has been restored to a natural condition. All gas bloating and belching spells are ended. At the same time this medicine regulated my bowels. Konjola has exceptional merits and I recommend it to all sufferers."

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio, at Callahan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all the towns throughout this entire section.

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, through a wealthy customer gets Chatty a position as telephone operator at the Van Nuys Co., Bonds. Chatty, with her incessant chattering and gossip, creates havoc. She falls in love with one of the up-and-coming salesmen, David Jordan. He is interested in her, but when her gossip causes Agnes Herford to lose her position David passes her up. Later Chatty listens in on all of David's phone conversations and he finally "calls" her down in front of the office people. Chatty's girl friend, Billie Langenau, a file clerk, and Winnie Talcott, Mr. Van's secretary, have some lively parties. Chatty has dates with a newcomer to the office, Bryant Dunning, who is married but says his wife left him. Chatty goes with Bryant more to spite David.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

David Jordan, his face white with repressed emotion, looked at her with blazing eyes before which her own tell, his glance passed contemptuously over the girl who listened to her idle chatter, and rested on Billie. Then he shrugged, turned, and left the room.

Chatty crept home, fairly crushed. She entered the apartment slowly, dropped her bag in a chair, and sank into another wearily, her soul as tired as her body. "Why daughter! You look tired out!" cried Mrs. Chatterton, putting down her sewing to come to her. "Has anything happened?"

"Chatty had not intended to say anything about her experience at home, but at the sympathy in her mother's voice, and the anxiety on her tired face, Chatty opened her heart and told her mother what David had said.

"And I hadn't done a thing—really, mother, I hadn't! He just talked to me terribly, terribly!" Chatty's voice was a wail. "And I—I just hate him, hate him! But I'll get even with him—you'll see!"

Mrs. Chatterton was quite sure that the real trouble with Chatty was liking David Jordan too well, not in hating him. But she, herself, was tired and worn; the sewing was eye straining, and paid very little. Pudd was a continuous anxiety. Chatty's late hours, non-committal explanations of where she had been, and certain circles under the girl's eyes, not altogether explained by too little rest, all took their toll from the hard working mother.

So just now she was not very wise.

"It's your tongue, Chatty—the put it—that you can't control! It's put it—that you can't control! It's talked you into trouble time after time! Why can't you learn to keep it beneath your teeth?"

"Oh, you, too!" cried Chatty. "Everyone is against me!" And in a passion of tears, Chatty flung herself into her own room and snut and locked the door.

She did not come out for supper. In her heart began a wistful little wonder as to whether her mother might be right; Billie said the same thing, and Winnie had said it, and Mr. Van Nuys told her so, and David Jordan—the girls who had not openly condemned her looked sympathetic with Winnie.

"I do not gossip!" Chatty assured herself, that sneaking David Jordan! And that sneaking David Jordan! And that sneaking David Jordan!

Chatty didn't stop to think that what David had done openly she had done secretly, when she listened into his telephone conversation with the girl whose "sticky mouth" he had said he liked to kiss.

A half past nine that evening she slipped out of her room, went to the corner grocery and telephoned Bryant Dunning.

"For the love of Mike, come and get me! I need you!" she cried into the phone. "Don't come to the house—meet me on the corner!"

She shrank a little at his exclamation of delight.

"But I won't go to his rooms again!" she assured herself. "I'll just—just have another automobile lesson!"

But her automobile lesson that night consisted largely in parking in a lonely road, resting in Bryant's open and welcoming arms and being kissed. Chatty was openly "cracking" with him now. It was not until nearly eleven at night that she remembered Winnie had asked her to bring Bryant to her apartment.

"Let's go!" she exclaimed, as she told him. "We'll have a drink and a dance and another drink—"

"Chat, you ought to get even with him!"

"Don't you like this—petting?" asked Bryant. "Let's stay here!"

"Oh, Bryant, I'm all kissed out!" answered Chatty. "The day was too much for me."

"I should think it might be!" Chatty did not catch the dry note in Bryant's voice. "Did Mr. Van get that 'daughter' stuff over to you?"

"You know better!" Chatty laughed. "Daughter, indeed! But what flapper did he have?"

"You tell 'em kid, I stuffer!" Bryant ended his ancient slang with a kiss. "Come on, if we've got to go—"

Chatty did not have a good time at Winnie's until she had absorbed some drinks. Dave's reproachful, angry, level eyes looked into hers until they became misty with the alcohol. But with the light heartedness that followed the fourth cocktail, and the somewhat rapid but apparently funny jokes of the "Famous Four," regret gave way to a harder feeling. Anger came back. Dave Jordan couldn't bowl her out and get away with it, like that.

She said so, apropos of nothing, suddenly.

"I'll say he can't!" Winnie's share of cocktails had made her completely forget how she had "bawled out" Chatty, herself. "Chat, you ought to get even with him, easy! With all that telephoning he does!"

"I'm going to!" cried Chatty. "I'm—oh, the floor is going up and down like a sea! Funny floor, you got, Winnie! Give us another—another—you know—cocktail!"

Every one laughed. It was too funny, not knowing that a cocktail was a cocktail! And thinking a floor was a sea! Chatty chuckled. She felt happy. She didn't mind the hard day or the harder words now! But she was going to get even with Mr. David Jordan. He'd see!

Chatty awoke with a headache, and cross. She always did after a "wild party" with Winnie, when the drinks flowed freely. She still didn't like the taste, but she had come to look for the effect. But the "morning after the night before" was always disagreeable.

Chatty wouldn't admit that she felt mean from too much drug store alcohol. Oh, no! The trouble was the way she had been treated.

David Jordan was at fault! He had bawled her out! Well, he could just watch his step! She'd fix him—fixing her and calling her names and listening over her shoulder—

She watched him, unobtrusively, for several days; she listened in on his telephone calls, but could make nothing of his talk with his customers of bonds and quotations, prices and fluctuations. She hoped she might get inside his desk, some time, by some such piece of luck as had attended her burglarious entry into Agnes' desk. Maybe David kept a diary, too!

But if he did, he never left his keys around.

Yet the chance came. Three days later Chatty stopped, half way home with Billie Langenau, to gasp: "My pay! I left it on my desk! Did you ever know anything so stupid! I must go right back—"

"Oh, that's too bad!" cried Billie. "Chatty, I'd go back with you, but I've got to get supper for sister tonight—"

"Sure," agreed Chatty. "I know—oh, what a stupid thing to do!"

"I'm going to!" cried Chatty. "I'm—oh, the floor is going up and down like a sea! Funny floor, you got, Winnie! Give us another—another you know—cocktail!"

Every one laughed. It was too funny, not knowing that a cocktail was a cocktail! And thinking a floor was a sea! Chatty chuckled. She felt happy. She didn't mind the hard day or the harder words now! But she was going to get even with Mr. David Jordan. He'd see!

Chatty awoke with a headache, and knew she always did after a "wild party" with Winnie, when the drinks flowed freely. She still didn't like the taste, but she had come to look for the effect. But the "morning after the night before" was always disagreeable.

Chatty wouldn't admit that she felt mean from too much drug store alcohol. Oh, no! The trouble was the way she had been treated.

David Jordan was at fault! He had bawled her out! Well, he could just watch his step! She'd fix him—rizzing her and calling her names and listening over her shoulder—

For several days, she listened in on his telephone calls, but could make nothing of his talk with his customers of bonds and quotations, and downers of bonds and quotations.

For once Chatty did not tell what was in her mind, either to her mother, to Billie, or to Winnie. "They'll know soon enough. Maybe I'll get a raise," thought Chatty. But there was less comfort in the thought than she expected. For Dave was going to leave!

AIMEE FIGHTS TO SAVE ZIONITES

Aimee McPherson (right) has established a branch of her "Four Square Gospel" Church in Waukegan, Ill., right next door to Zion City, the home of Wilbur Glen Voliva (left) followers. It is said to be Aimee's intention to "deliver the poor Zionites from the bondage of Voliva."

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 24.—The start of a "holy war" between Wilbur Glen Voliva of Zion City and Aimee McPherson of Los Angeles was heralded yesterday. Announcement was made Aimee has established a permanent branch of her "four-square gospel" church in Waukegan—virtually at the three-fold of the Voliva domain.

Early in the summer the Aimee sects were active in the region, and one of them, Esda R. Loy, told a startled audience in Waukegan that "hell is just a few miles from here." She tactfully refrained from mentioning the direction. But she did challenge Voliva to a debate on the question whether the earth is round like an orange or round like a pancake. Voliva supporting the pancake hypothesis.

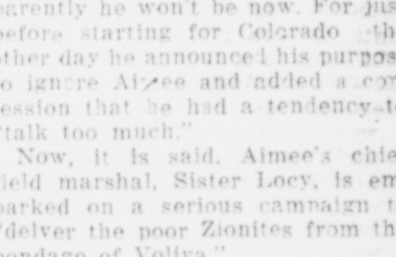

He wouldn't be trapped in a controversy then, however, and apparently he won't be now. For just before starting for Colorado—the other day he announced his purpose to ignore Aimee and added a confession that he had a tendency to "talk too much."

Now, it is said, Aimee's chief field marshal, Sister Loy, is embarked on a serious campaign to "deliver the poor Zionites from the bondage of Voliva."

"All that Voliva offers these people is a flat earth. He owns everything in Zion," said the people are his feudal serfs. He fixes their wages, but he doesn't feed their souls."

She is conducting meetings every night, with extra ones on Sunday, and she is quoted as charging that the Voliva agents have a system of spying on the Zionites who slip over to Waukegan to hear the "four square" message.

Because he is the idol of all the femmes of the younger generation, causes heart throbs among the high school coeds and is the source of many pleasant dreams, the column decoration today is made up of none other than Charles "Buddy" Rogers, juvenile heart smasher de luxe.

Behind each silver cloud, however, there must be a murky lining, presented in this case in an announcement of the continued devotion of Buddy to June Collyer. Recently Buddy acquired a swank blue limousine and the first thing he did was drive over to June's house in Beverly Hills. June was convalescing from an attack of ptomaine poisoning, but she had to go riding, just the same.

They say the second place Buddy will go in his new automobile, is to his old home in Olathe, Kan.

sas. He wanted to take his younger brother, whose name, for some unknown reason is merely Bb, to University of Kansas at Lawrence for his freshman year. Bb is going to be a movie actor also.

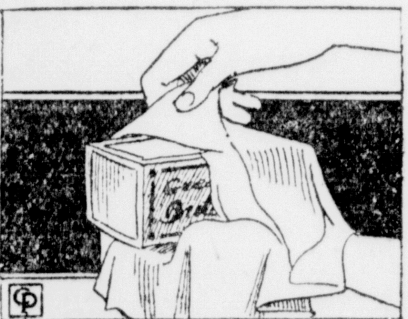

When Paramount started its school for movie actors, Buddy was a junior at the University of Kansas and spending his summers playing in orchestras and working on his dad's newspaper, the Mirror, in Olathe.

His screen tests were successful and he went to New York for six months of training. When he finished there he was selected to play the lead in the graduation picture, "Fascinating Youth." His next film was "So's Your Old Man" and then he was the hero of "Wings", which placed him in the starring class. He has played in half a dozen or more productions since then.

Among his other accomplishments, Rogers plays every instrument used in a jazz band and can talk with his fingers. A vaudeville entertainer so impressed him that he worked to learn to manipulate all the instruments. Since the state deaf and dumb asylum of Kansas is in Olathe, he learned the finger language as a convenience.

His musical ability helped him through college to take a trip to Europe and in the talkies. He

CUSSINS AND FEARN BRANCH TO OPEN FOR BUSINESS SATURDAY

Xenia's newest department store, a retail branch of The Cussins and Fearn Co., which will occupy a newly constructed one-story building erected by P. H. Flynn on the site of the old Day property at 19 E. Second St., will formally open its doors to the public at 8 a. m. Saturday, September 28.

The building was erected especially to meet the needs of The Cussins and Fearn Co., and the entire basement and first floor will be used for sales, display and storage of the large stocks of merchandise to be carried at Xenia constantly.

The Cussins and Fearn Co., needs no special introduction to Xenia or Greene County residents. For more than thirty years it has served residents in this locality as a catalog mail order company. Within the last two years the firm has inaugurated another progressive business policy and an expansion program, involving the establishment of retail stores in leading Ohio communities.

Plans are said to call for at least one new store in every county in the state as fast as the necessary sites may be obtained.

The public is invited to inspect this new store Saturday and arrangements for the efficient handling of the crowds are being made. In addition to the regular force of local people employed in the sales department, old employees from Columbus, acquainted with local residents who have shopped at the firm's Columbus store, will assist on opening day.

Mr. Smith, manager of the new Xenia branch store, announced that for the opening Saturday the doors will open at 8 a. m. and close at 10 p. m. The regular hours after the opening will be from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Saturdays and 7 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. on week days.

ATTORNEY WRITES NEW O. S. U. SONG

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—The band at Ohio State University is rehearsing a brand new number—"Fight On, Ohio".

The new piece is a football song written by W. A. Dougherty, Cleveland attorney, who wrote "Fight The Team Across The Field".

The band hopes to have the new number ready in time for the Wittenberg game which opens the 1929 Ohio State season here, October 5.

"Fight On, Ohio" won the $500 prize offered by the university athletic association in the song contest conducted by the alumni association. Its author was a student at the school fourteen years ago.

Incidentally, the Ohio State band is getting $4000 worth of new instruments and the athletic department is paying the bill, since the band is used mostly for athletic events.
